Merchants Urge Daylight Saving Time for Atlanta

ACTION DEFERRED ON FIVE-DAY WEEK FOR CITY'S STORES

Sharp Division Over Proposal Evident at Meeting of Association; Further Study Urged on Heads of Individual Stores.

CHANGE IN TIME SEEN AS BENEFIT

Workers and Children, Particularly, Would Be Aided by Adoption of Plan, Resolutions State.

Overwhelming approval of the proposal to establish daylight saving time for Atlanta was given Tuesday afternoon at a meeting of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association, and Tom C. Dickson, president, was instructed to convey the sentiment of the organization, composed of more than 400 leading retail dealers, to Mayor James L. Key and city council. Resolutions adopted pointed out that the change would be beneficial to workers in all lines of industry and to all children of the city. Sharp division regarding a five-day week for retail establishments was apparent at the meeting, and at the suggestion of Frank H. Neely, general manager of Rich's, Inc., action was deferred pending the adoption of a uniform opening and closing hour.

J. Nicholson, district manager of Woolworth's, asked if the meeting could in propriety consider the daylight savings measure now pending before council, and J. Allen, chairman of the code committee of the retail organization, who was presiding during a discussion of the five-day program, gave his assent.

Neely then suggested a vote, which was taken, and which indicated an overwhelming sentiment favoring institution of the plan pending before council providing that daylight saving time shall become effective in Atlanta beginning April 29 and extending until September 1.

The ordinance was offered at the April 16 meeting of council by Aldermen J. Sid Tiller and J. Glover Haller. It was referred to the ordinance committee for a public hearing, which probably will be held at the May 3 session of that body.

Date on which the plan will become effective probably will be changed to conform with the next meeting of council, May 7.

Among the speakers pushing the five-day week proposal were Neely, who praised the co-operation of the Painting by Decatur Woman Is Selected for White House

President Roosevelt has selected the CWA painting of Bulloch Hall, the ante-bellum Howell home of the President Theodore Roosevelt's mother, by Mrs. Frances Lee Turner, 2301 Ridgewood drive, Decatur, the mother of seven children, for the White House.

The painting is one of the hundreds on display at the Corcoran art gallery at Washington, where the work of artists employed by the civil works administration is on exhibition.

The president immediately recognized the Bulloch home when he and Mrs. Roosevelt formally opened the exhibit Monday and directed that at the end of the exhibition the painting be hung in the White House. Mrs. Roosevelt also was immensely pleased with the work of Mrs. Turner. The Bulloch home is one of the show places of Georgia. It was there that the parents of President Theodore Roosevelt and the grandparents of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt were married. President Roosevelt has visited the home a number of times as has the nation's first lady.

Mrs. Turner, the artist, is the wife of Dr. E. K. Turner, professor in Latin at Emory University. Mrs. Turner was absent from the city Tuesday but Mr. Turner and their seven children were elated over Mrs. Turner's success. She is at Bridgeport, Ala., with her 95-year-old father, Dr. E. L. Lee. Mrs. Turner's mother died at Bridgeport last week.

Mrs. Turner has been painting since she was a little girl. She studied under Rhoda Holmes Nichols and Kenyon Cox and at the Chester Spring Art school in Pennsylvania. She also worked with the Student Art League in New York. Her oldest daughter, Frances, is following in her mother's

U. S. AGENTS PRESS DILLINGER HUNT

Government Issues Order to 5,000 Officers To "Shoot on Sight."

CHICAGO, April 24.—(AP)—Five thousand police officers in five states every one of them armed to the teeth, were alerted tonight with the word of federal authorities that the end of the Dillinger's bloody trail was in sight. They were ordered to shoot Dillinger on sight.

Government men in charge of the man hunt reviewed their accomplishments in tracking Dillinger during the past week and declared it only a matter of days, perhaps hours, before the outlaw would be killed or captured probably killed.

Telephone calls, telegrams and personal visits from citizens came at the rate of hundreds an hour to the anti-crime directors of a dozen cities reporting Dillinger to be here, there, everywhere—in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois.

By many scraps of information reaching them, authorities sifted out what they believed to be of value

SILVER AGITATORS SHOWN AS OWNERS OF WHITE METAL

Senate May Investigate Speculative Market as Result of Revelation on Remonetization Forces.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(AP)—A treasury suggestion that the senate conduct its own investigation of the speculative silver market received careful consideration tonight after a disclosure that two of a group recently active in urging monetization of the metal had directly or indirectly, a financial interest in it.

A partial list of corporations, banks and individuals which have been dealing in silver was sent to the senate at its request by Secretary Morgenthau. It included the names of Harris and Vose, New York commission merchants, and Continental Can Company.

Harris, Named.

Robert M. Harris, president of the former, and Carl Conway, chairman of the board of the latter, were members of a group, described by one of its spokesmen as a "committee of patriots," which gave a dinner last night for senators and representatives who have been associated with the drive for monetization.

Harris & Vose, the list disclosed, held a long position on a 25,000-ounce future contract calling for delivery next month, and acted as brokers in numerous silver transactions for other parties. At present prices its contract would involve approximately $11,000.

Continental Can was on both sides of the speculative fence with a hedge on 200,000 ounces of the metal, as of January 30. Against holdings of 200,000 ounces of spot silver, it held eight short contracts for future delivery of the metal involving 25,000 ounces each.

Neither Harris nor Conway, who are still in the city, arranging for a dinner to be attended by thousands of persons and to which all members of congress are to be invited, would make any comment.

Difficulty Met.

Morgenthau's suggestion for a senate inquiry was based upon the difficulty which he said the treasury had encountered in assembling the information it wanted. Its own investigation had been undertaken several months ago as the result of a desire, as Morgenthau put it, to see who owned silver and how much, in view of the persistent demand for silver legislation.

"Considerable difficulty is being experienced in getting the necessary information in certain cases," the secretary said today in his letter of transmittal. "It may develop that the only successful method of obtaining this will be for the senate to proceed with the investigation of these cases in its own behalf."

Sentiment for such an inquiry seemed to be developing among congressmen.

BLACK SEEKS CURB FOR SPECULATION

Moves To Restrict Use of Huge Federal Bank Cash Reserves.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(AP)—An unprecedented volume of bank cash reserves was stressed by the federal reserve board today as "a factor favorable to business recovery" but new authority was asked to prevent its use "in producing speculative inflation."

The board's statement in its monthly review emphasized that surplus reserves of its member banks reached $1,506,000,000 above legal requirements at the end of March. Later figures have pushed excess reserves past $1,600,000,000.

To illustrate the importance of the figure, Governor Eugene Black said a billion in excess reserves meant a possible credit extension of 10 to 15 billions "without having to resort to borrowing at the federal reserve banks."

"How soon these idle reserves will begin to be utilized and how rapid their absorption will be, will depend upon the progress of economic recovery," the board said. "It also remains for the future to determine what proportion of the excess reserve will be used when business activity will have attained a normal volume."

"It would appear on the basis of past experience that the existing volume of excess reserves is far in excess of probable business needs and that it is not likely that these excess reserves will be entirely absorbed."

Slight Heart Attack Suffered by Insull

S. S. EXILONA, AT CASABLANCA, Morocco, April 24.—(AP) Samuel Insull suffered a slight heart attack tonight while chatting in the ship's salon. He recovered shortly and was able to resume conversation.

The former utilities operator had to leave the room, but came back in a few minutes. He ascribed the attack to over-exhaustion.

The secure came while he was smoking a cigar and talking to passengers. His face suddenly went extremely white. He arose and without a word walked quickly out of the room.

On returning he said it was his heart, and that he must cut down on his smoking. He seemed to have entirely recovered and remained for another hour chatting with his friends.

TUGWELL IS GIVEN NEW FARM POST

F. D. R. Appoints "Brain Truster" Undersecretary of Agriculture.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(UP)—President Roosevelt today demonstrated his faith in Rexford G. Tugwell, No. 1 brain-truster—and according to Dr. William A. Wirt, master mind "red plotter"—by advancing him to the new position of undersecretary of agriculture.

The president at the same time promoted Thomas Jefferson Coolidge, Boston banker, to be undersecretary of the treasury, placing higher personnel of that department on a permanent basis for the first time since Henry Morgenthau Jr. took charge.

Tugwell's advancement from assistant secretary, in addition to increasing his salary from $7,500 to $10,000, will permit appointment of a new assistant secretary to relieve Tugwell and Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace of some of their heavy duties.

The new post of undersecretary was created by recent action of congress and it had been well understood that Tugwell was slated for the post.

Nipponese Minister Faces Delicate Task in Explaining Policy To Suit Nation and World.

By the Associated Press.

Through its minister to Switzerland the Chinese government determined Tuesday to challenge Japanese declarations that Tokyo opposes foreign "meddling" in China.

The minister invited correspondents in Geneva to a conference at which he is expected to explain "the necessity of Chinese reconstruction and China's desire to obtain aid from other nations."

Other developments:

Tokyo—Foreign Minister Hirota had the task of explaining the April 17 manifesto—issued by his subordinates without his consent—as to satisfy the Japanese public, which approves it, and other governments, some of which are known to be suspicious of it.

Washington—Strong indications were at hand that the United States will follow a policy of silence in the matter.

London—The British government was reliably reported as opposed to possible concerted action by any combination of powers against the hand-off manifesto because of the delicacy of the situation. American Ambassador Bingham conferred with the Chinese minister, but made no statement of his views.

Peking—Worry was manifest over the Japanese edict since the biggest French colonial possession, Indo-China, is near Japan. A foreign office spokesman said: "We are doing nothing except in connection with the United States, Great Britain, and Holland."

Government Crisis Looming in Spain

MADRID, April 25.—(Wednesday)—(AP)—Resignation of the Spanish cabinet and possibly also of President Niceto Alcala Zamora himself loomed early today out of a bitter political battle over the new amnesty law.

At the same time labor conditions were violently disturbed throughout the country, with a wave of strikes assuming the character of a general strike.

After long consideration the president signed the bill, giving freedom to some 5,000 political prisoners. It will become effective today with publication in the official gazette. It was thought his act would be sufficient to avert a government crisis.

But it became known last night that the president sent a message to congress indicating that despite his signature on the bill he did not favor some of its minor provisions.

Sanders Is Elected To Fill Kemp Seat

BATON ROUGE, La., April 24.—(AP)—J. Y. Sanders Jr., anti-Huey Long leader, will be the next United States representative from the sixth Louisiana congressional district to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Representative Bolivar E. Kemp.

With only nine precincts missing from today's run-off democratic primary, Sanders held a lead of more than 2,000 votes over Harry D. Wilson, a Georgia Tech student, also of that address. After fishing for a time, the boat race was suggested, and it was understood that the loser jump overboard and swim the remaining distance after the first boat had touched shore.

Average Worker's Pay Shows Marked Gain

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(AP)—The industrial worker's pay check for March this year was increased by Secretary Perkins today as more than a fourth larger than the one he received in March, 1933.

She said a study by the bureau of labor statistics showed that per capita earnings of workers in all industries reporting to the labor department increased 27.2 per cent in March, 1934, compared with the same month a year ago.

Per capita average earnings reported for March in a number of industries included: $25.70 per week in the automobile industry, $21.83 in millinery, $20.25 in the iron and steel industry and $18.83 in the boot and shoe industry.

In bituminous coal mining the average earnings were placed at $19.44, or 66.7 per cent more than a year ago.

Abandonment of Present Rivers, Harbors Development System Advocated.

(Copyright, 1934, by Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, April 24.—(AP)—Abandonment of the system of rivers and harbors development that has prompted many a congressional scramble for projects and substitution of a carefully drawn program for development of the nation's waterways are among the recommendations that have been made to President Roosevelt by a special cabinet committee.

The members of the group are Secretaries Wallace, Ickes, Dern and Perkins. They were named more than two months ago to draft a plan for broad national economic development.

Experts associated with the committee said today that all the material assembled had not been digested but that the bulk of the report had been communicated to the president.

There were pronounced disagreements on several subjects, but the cabinet members were in accord in condemning previous methods of handling inland waterways and in concluding that hundreds of millions of dollars have been spent with little return.

Many Be Abandoned.

One predicted result of the cabinet study was that many rivers and harbors projects, authorized or partly completed, probably would be abandoned. The new policy, however, would not affect public works allotments.

President Roosevelt has asked that a rivers and harbors bill be withheld

Moley Envisages New Deal As Union of Past Policies

Principles of Bryan, La Follette and Theodore Roosevelt Combined, Says Ex-Brain Trustee.

The new deal is an amalgamation of valued policies and principles of Bryan, La Follette and Theodore Roosevelt, concentrated and made workable, and will receive the full approval of the American people whenever they get a chance to display their views, Dr. Raymond Moley said here Tuesday night.

Completing a two-lecture series, the editor of the magazine, Today, erstwhile Roosevelt Brain Trustee No. 1 and former assistant secretary of state, asserted there is nothing new in the new deal, nothing foreign in it and nothing except the propagation of the realization that the old methods and the old leadership of American business and American life have outlived their usefulness.

In his speech at the Wesley Memorial church, Dr. Moley said the new deal contained these three important elements:

The prime principles of the monetary policy of Bryan, providing a controlled inflation and deflation of the dollar, what is to all intents and purposes a currency managed by the president to meet the nation's day-to-day needs.

The 1912 policy of Theodore Roosevelt for a partnership between business and the government.

"As I have said before, there is no brain trust," Dr. Moley said. "Rather there are three brain trusts. One is composed of the western advocates of silver legislation which provide the brain trust for our monetary policy, the second the 'Bryan' group, providing for our control of business, and the third providing for Theodore Roosevelt's plan for the partnership between business and the government."

Dr. Moley said the new deal was made necessary by the demand for the people for a change in leadership and in methods.

"When the new deal was born, our situation was the same as that of England during her most trying days of the World War," he asserted. "In England, the party of class, which came from the halls of Oxford and Cambridge, had run into serious defeat and there was nothing left for the people to do but to look elsewhere for the leadership they needed. They found it in the little Welshman who steered the empire to safety. When our nation found its leaders were no longer able to handle the situation resulting from years of badly-managed government, they turned to Franklin D. Roosevelt and found in him the leadership they needed."

Dr. Moley, a staunch supporter of Theodore Roosevelt in his Bull Moose campaign of 1912, made several thrusts at the opposition of young T. H. to the F. D. R. policies.

"There is no doubt but that Theo-tail dealers in the national re-employment campaign. He asserted that the plan would not curtail employment, but that the lines he represented "spend more money" because they would have more leisure.

Allen backs proposal. Allen asserted that the plan would provide a more uniform week, and held that just as much business would be done in five days under the program as in six. He also said there would be a better spirit among employees and they would do better work.

Sinclair Jacobs, of Jacobs Pharmacy, opposed the plan, contending that it would not increase business and that the lines he represented have a difficult enough time under the present plan.

Dickson said the furniture men could not approve a Saturday or Monday closing, pointing out that the two days mentioned are the best his line enjoys, and that collections might suffer.

S. D. Mullinax, secretary of the Retail Food Dealers Association, explained the difficulty of caring for perishables under the suggested plan as those advocated by T. H. in 1912 when he sought to set up an act providing for federal incorporation of business enterprises, adding:

"All Teddie the Less and Alice (Mrs. Longworth) know about their father is that he was republican. And all they know how to do now is to follow republicans."

When Professor Moley finished his address, one of the audience asked: "Are the principles of Tom Watson embodied in the new deal?"

"I'm sorry that I have not studied the life of Watson enough to know just what his principles were," he replied.

HARRY G. POOLE JR., WEDS MISS ECHOLS

Harry G. Poole Jr., well-known young Atlanta businessman, was quietly married Tuesday night to Miss Grace Echols, of Cleburne avenue, who formerly resided in Clarkston.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Claude H. Pritchard, pastor of the Oakhurst Presbyterian church. Mr. and Mrs. Poole will reside at 40 human circle following a short honeymoon at the Poole country home on Cascade road.

By the Associated Press. Hopful signs appeared on the railroad horizon Tuesday night as labor leaders and executives reported "progress" toward settlement of their wage dispute, but news from strike forces at Cleveland and Birmingham was less comforting.

A strike of gasoline men tied knots in the Cleveland hose lines and threatened a 100 per cent tie-up of motor cars in Greater Cleveland.

The 2,500 attendants and 275 truck drivers of major oil companies already on strike for a week were endeavoring to enlist independent oil stations in the general shutdown.

At Cleveland, too, operations at the Fisher body plant were at a standstill with 8,000 employees idle, demanding union recognition and higher wages.

Eight thousand ore miners of three steel companies at Birmingham, Ala., served warning of a strike for higher wages, a seven-hour day and institution of the "check off" system of collecting union dues. After taking the strike vote they told a grievance committee to negotiate and give the signal for the walkout.

More than 100 shots were fired in a violent outbreak at a railway coal mine near Parrish, Ala., a region where union and non-union miners were in conflict. The mine had been shut down and one was wounded.

More favorable augury came from the Birmingham conference of the United Mine Workers of America and coal operators, who reported "complete accord" and intimated 21,000 miners soon would be back in the diggings.

Leaders of the railway brotherhoods and the management side were back in conference at Washington for a new try at settling the wage dispute that has been hanging menacingly over the railroads. They announced "progress" and said a definite announcement might be expected after another meeting.

A dozen or more men walked out of a Fisher Body Company plant at Tarrytown, N. Y., during the day over what the manager described as a misunderstanding not connected with the strike prevailing in other cities.

Selling country Illinois members of the Progressive Miners of America, numbering 1,800 were to vote Wednesday on a proposal to return to work pending final determination of their wage controversy.

Leaders of the Chicago Teamsters Union met to decide their course, with a strike of 27,000 drivers on possibility.

Text of the resolution adopted on daylight saving time follows: "Whereas, it has come to our attention that there has been introduced in city council by Mr. Sid Tiller and Mr. I. "Whereas, daylight saving time in Atlanta during the summer months would be particularly beneficial to the workers in all lines of industry and to all children in the city;

"Therefore, be it resolved, that we, approximately 200 members of the Atlanta Retail Merchants Association, in meeting assembled, representing practically all lines of retail business and employing approximately 8,000 people, do on record as enthusiastically endorsing the adoption of daylight saving time in Atlanta during the summer months; and

"Be it further resolved, that Mr. T. C. Dickson, president of the Atlanta Retail Merchants Association, be instructed to convey to the mayor and general council the urgent request referred to above to be adopted."

"Adopted unanimously this 24th day of April, 1934."

Bean and Son; Book & Gregg Hardware Company, American Associated Companies, Consumers Company, John F. Clark and Company, Lipcomb-Weyman Chapman Company, Swift & Company Fertilizer Works, and A. L. Belle Isle garage.

Mr. Rolleston and Mr. Milner urged all organizations who have been contacted to make efforts to complete taking advance subscriptions as soon as possible.

Rogers Addresses Civitan Club; Speaks to Civic Gathering Today

President Roosevelt's 15-minute radio talk during the second week of his administration was called the greatest 15 minutes in American history Tuesday night by Sherman Rogers, associate editor of Liberty, in a recovery crusade address before the Inter-City Civitan Club in Haswellville, Ohio.

In that short period of time the president brought confidence to a nation which had lost it and thus began the pull back to prosperity from what otherwise was but a panic in the offing, the speaker said.

"We can gain nothing by throwing mud at this time," Rogers told the Civitans. "There is hate and factionalism in business and industry and this must be overcome by local leaders. It is up to you."

"Twenty years ago Samuel Gompers said there was overproduction caused by machines. Now we realize there is no overproduction but simply underconsumption."

"When the people begin to buy what they want again, then complete prosperity will be here. You ask where will the money come from? Credit! Credit is the greatest currency in the world and the moment we have confidence and faith between people then credit is immediately established," he asserted.

Mr. Rogers will deliver a special address Friday night at the city auditorium to conclude his series of lectures here under the auspices of the National and Atlanta Exchange clubs, and other civic organizations in the city. Friday at noon he will talk before the Masonic Club at the Frances Virginia tea room and Thursday at noon will address the students at Brenau College in Gainesville. He also will lecture at several Atlanta schools. His delivery of a short talk Tuesday morning at Oglethorpe University.

5 Prisoners Indicted In Jail 'Court' Beating

Indictments naming five prisoners in Fulton tower charged with assault with intent to murder were returned by the Fulton county grand jury Tuesday as an aftermath of a beating given by J. E. Jackson, a prisoner, by a "kangaroo court." J. D. Lee, under life sentence for the murder of Ben Lichtenstein two years ago, was one of those named in the bills and was said to have served as "judge" of the court which meted out punishment for Jackson.

Others named in the indictments were George Meredith, Sam Cowan, Harold Hicks and Raymond Williams. The beating given the prisoner was said to have been given because Jackson testified for the state in a recent trial.

HUDSON, DIRECTORS RENAMED TO POSTS BY ATHLETIC CLUB

Scott Hudson, widely-known Atlantan who has served as president of the Atlanta Athletic Club for 15 years, Tuesday night was re-elected to that office when more than 300 members of the noted club renounced five directors for the ensuing year.

Other directors, all of whom were re-elected, are Henry Heinz, Robert Tyre (Bobby) Jones Jr., E. A. Thorpe and A. A. Doonan. These five will name seven other members of the board at a meeting next Tuesday night.

Hudson was named chairman of the board which automatically makes him president of the club.

Lewis Gordon, chairman of the membership committee, reported at the annual meeting that 451 new members joined the Atlanta Athletic Club, during the last year. Other committee chairmen who made reports were E. A. Thorpe, J. C. Malone, Wiley West, A. A. Doonan and George Beatty. A buffet supper was served at the club following the election.

"SILVER SHIRT" PAPER DECLARED INSOLVENT

ASHEVILLE, N. C., April 24.—(AP) Federal Judge E. Yates Webb signed an order here directing the United States marshal to take possession of all property of Galahad Press, Inc., publisher of the "Silver Shirt" Magazine, which is the organ of the Silver Legion (Silver Shirts) of America.

The Galahad Press admitted insolvency and "avows that it should be declared bankrupt" in a paper filed in district court by D. D. Kellogg, secretary.

House Chiefs See May 20 as Logical Date; Robinson Says 'Later.'

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(AP)—With widely varying views of the amount of work remaining to be done before congress can pack its bags and head homeward, house and senate leaders today began warring over the legislative program.

After a visit to the White House, Speaker Rainey and House Leader Byrns thought three measures might be enough and congress might get away by May 20.

Senate Leader Robinson talked with other members of his party and figured there were 10 major pieces of legislation yet to go. This would send the session far into June.

The conference between President Roosevelt and the two house chiefs brought questions as they left as to whether there had been any discussion of administration dissatisfaction with the leadership of Rainey and Byrns.

"Asked for Job." Rainey took a pipe from his mouth and said: "I asked the president if he would give me a job. He replied there was no necessity for that, because he wanted me where I am."

The two said they reached an understanding with the president for a renewed endeavor to conclude quickly the administration program.

White House officials were silent about their visit, permitting Rainey and Byrns to speak for themselves. They sought the conference.

The three measures Rainey said were necessary for the house to pass before adjournment were extension for another year of the bank deposit guarantee legislation on its present terms; the stock exchange control bill; and the anti-crime legislative program of the administration.

Secret of the Umbrella Handle

Secret drawers in secretaries are not secrets any more, but secret handles in umbrellas are! To the unobservant it's just another Gloria umbrella... but steady there, Philo Vance, that handle has a suspicious look. Just as we thought, it contains a metal cylinder that contains... what do you think? A rabbit? No. A pint of gin? No. Give up? It's a pair of rubbers (high-top for overshoes). They fit into the handle and give you a nice, secure feeling, whether you need 'em or no. Only $4.95 for umbrella, rubbers AND solving the mystery. Street Floor.

Onions and Radishes on the House

Gourmets are licking their chops over the ravishing red radishes and Spring onions being passed around in Davison's 6th Floor Restaurant these days... with the compliments of the cook!

Ma chere—I'll NEVER forget one day when we found the QUAINTEST cafe in Paris—oh—you have to leave now? So sorry. Housewares, Fourth Floor.

Seconds to None

We have a New England conscience about "seconds" in our upstairs departments. We turn a deaf ear to the blandishments of salesmen who beguile us with tempting merchandise that's "almost perfect." We say, "Get thee behind me, Satan!" to the most piquant irregularities. We've vowed a vow that nothing short of perfection shall cross the threshold of our upstairs departments—and we keep our word!

A few afternoons ago my telephone brought a plaintive, "Is this Miss Lee? Well, um, this is Hattie. I works for Miss Jones and she's done phoned me up that she's bringin' some folks home to dinner and please could you tell me if the forks goes on the right and the knives on the left?" We quickly set her right and averted, we hope, a major tragedy at the Jones' house.

Revenue Collector States He Will Not Enter; Two Judges Qualified.

The name of W. Eugene Page, collector of internal revenue, Tuesday was added to the growing list of distinguished Georgians who have announced that they will not run for governor in opposition to Eugene Talmadge this year.

In a brief statement, the federal official denied emphatically that he would enter the race, although he admitted that a number of his friends had urged him to become a candidate.

"I have been urged by a number of my friends to run for governor but I have never considered making the race," Mr. Page said. "I am sorry that I did not say so publicly when I was first approached several weeks ago."

Mr. Page added that there was no truth in published reports that Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., was among those who urged him to run. "Neither Senator Russell nor his close personal friends were among those who talked with about the governorship," he said.

Two superior court judges Tuesday qualified with Miss Eleanor Orr, secretary of the state democratic executive committee, to run for re-election.

An unidentified friend called upon Miss Orr and paid the $125 entry fee of Judge James C. Davis of the Stone Mountain circuit. Judge Davis is ill at the Piedmont sanitarium. He was appointed to the bench by Governor Talmadge several months ago when Judge John B. Hutcheson was elevated to the supreme court.

Judge R. N. Hardman, of Louisville, also paid his fee Tuesday and formally entered the race for re-election.

TOM MORRIS CANDIDATE FOR STATE LEGISLATURE
Tom C. Morris, former member of city council and former superintendent of the city prison farm, Tuesday announced his candidacy for the Georgia assembly from Fulton county to fill the post now held by George Eckford.

Morris will run on a straight platform for repeal of the state prohibition law. James L. Wells, also a former member of council, already has announced for the post, and Eckford will not run for re-election.

"I favor outright repeal," Morris said. "The state is not in any position even to attempt to enforce the law, and our schools, hospitals and asylums need revenue which would be derived from liquor taxes. Prohibition was a colossal blunder, and was too expensive a blunder to be continued."

MARKET WILL GIVE STYLE SHOW MAY 1

E. P. Minoque, executive head of the Southeastern Merchandising Market at 414-47 West Peachtree street, announced Tuesday that the market planned a style show of cotton fabrics to be held for ready-to-wear merchants on May 1-2-3.

A preshowing will be given of styles to be featured by many merchants during national cotton week which begins on May 14.

The style show will start each morning at 10:30 o'clock, with 15 beautiful manikins serving as models. In addition to cotton dresses and knit goods, other items will be shown. Approximately 125 style creations will be represented in the exhibit.

Practically all of this merchandise, Mr. Minoque stated, was personally selected by Nat J. Margulier, vice president of the Southeastern Merchandising Market, representative in New York. Mr. Margulier has had over 22 years' experience in the ready-to-wear market, and the merchandise selected for the Atlanta style revue, it was pointed out, was especially designed for southern trade and is available to southeastern merchants simultaneously with New York showings.

Approximately 4,000 of the dresses are available for inspection and immediate delivery to ready-to-wear stores desiring quick delivery.

Fulton Board Defers Action on '34 Finances

Fulton county commissioners Tuesday afternoon deferred efforts to absorb an apparent $254,000 deficit for this year on the basis of outstanding commitments, and committee heads will survey various governmental departments with a view of recommending curtailments and pay roll parings to prevent a tax increase.

Every member of the commission expressed himself as being opposed to any raise in the tax rate. Another meeting of the commission will be held early next month to attempt to balance the sheet for the year. Demands of federal authorities for $25,000 a month for relief activities has caused the fiscal crisis.

Arkwright Will Lend City Relief Payment

Anticipating a short delay in clearing up all details of refinancing of 1934 city of Atlanta bonds due this year, Mayor James L. Key Tuesday officially notified Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Power Company, that he would accept Mr. Arkwright's offer to advance $125,000.

The fund will be transferred immediately to Miss Gay B. Shepperson, Georgia FERA administrator, to meet arrears of the municipality in an agreement to pay $50,000 a month to retain federal relief expenditures for the city.

Refinancing of the bonds is assured and attorneys for the Atlanta Clearing House Association are busy preparing the papers. Mr. Arkwright offered to advance the money if details were not completed in time to meet city payments for relief by May 1.

In a letter to Arkwright, the mayor thanked him for his co-operation in the program.

GIRL VICTIM OF CRASH STILL SEMI-CONSCIOUS

Miss Nell Bullard, 22, of Lucile avenue, at 2 o'clock Wednesday morning passed her 74th hour or 31 days in a semi-conscious state as the result of injuries received in an automobile accident March 24.

Physicians at Grady hospital, where the girl lies in a critical condition, said Tuesday night there had been no appreciable change and that her chances for recovery are "poor." A brain injury, which doctors fear to attempt to remedy through surgery, has caused paralysis. Grady hospital records show no case in which a patient has been in a state of coma longer, it was said.

Life Spark Grows Brighter in Dog 11 Days After Scientific Execution

BERKELEY, Cal. April 24.—(UP)—A black and white terrier, "Lazarus IV," was unconscious but alive tonight, 11 days after he was asphyxiated and brought back to life again by Dr. Robert Cornish, 28, now employing the last of his GWA allotment in a struggle to prolong human life. Dr. Cornish and his assistants chose Friday, April 13, for their latest attempt to challenge death. The University of California graduate tonight hoped to restore the dog to normal. If he does he will be ready to employ his system of resuscitation upon humans killed by shock, heart disease, drowning, electrocution, fright or similar mishaps. A few weeks ago Dr. Cornish killed two terriers, brought them back to life and kept them alive for several hours before a second death overtook them. The youthful researcher believed he was on the right track. Autopsies showed organs of the dogs were "worn out" by excessive stimulation necessary to revive them. This was particularly true of the heart, which in the dog's second death stopped beating before breathing ceased. Dr. Cornish and his aids put "Lazarus IV" to death with nitrogen. When the dog's heart had been still for four minutes they blew oxygen into its lungs, applied artificial respiration of the "teeter-board" variety, and a minute later injected into the femoral artery a fluid consisting of fibrinated blood from another dog, heparin to prevent coagulation, a physiological salt solution, and epinephrine, a powerful heart stimulant akin to adrenalin.

Thirty seconds after the injection the terrier's heart again started beating. Breathing commenced and Lazarus had been brought back from the dead. For several hours the dog lay, comatose and weak. "His condition was similar to that of a person rendered unconscious by shock or a blow on the head," said Dr. Cornish. "His heart was beating rapidly under the stimulus and the blood pressure was low, conditions which marked the period just before second deaths of the earlier subjects."

"We injected into a vein of Lazarus IV blood containing a physiological salt solution and about seven per cent of gum arabic. During the war a British surgeon learned that gum arabic had a slowing effect on the heart."

"At intervals during the first day we slowed the heart's action with gum arabic. The dog remained alive, gained strength. Throughout he could hear. He could not see until Wednesday, when his pupils responded to a light test. Now he is regaining his eyesight."

"The dog's weakened condition partly is due to shock and partly to in-

In case you have not bought one of the manufactured games, rule off 16 blank squares. Cut them out and paste on cardboard. Number the squares from 1 to 15, four lines of four squares each. Discard the sixteenth square and then, without lifting any square from the table, proceed to work out the above problem.

There are more than a trillion possible and impossible combinations of the numbers 1 to 15. Some of you will recognize in Imp the Old Fifteen Puzzle.

Problems will appear daily in pairs. Each pair will be alike in design and symmetry. One always will be possible of solution and the other impossible. The trial and error method is the interesting way to find the solutions.

Four Arabs Must Die For Slaying American

BAGHDAD, Iraq, April 24.—(UP)—Four Arabs today were sentenced to death for the murder of Ray Fisher, 23, University of Cincinnati graduate and the son of Charles Fisher, of Hialeah, Fla.

Young Fisher and a companion, Rudolf May, a newspaperman of Dueseldorf, Germany, were shot and killed by Arabs 100 miles south of Baghdad March 5.

At the time the two were on a trip around the world. They were trying to reach India by way of Iraq, paddling a collapsible canoe.

Fisher was shot through the head and died instantly. May was shot in the abdomen and, before he died, told authorities that the Arabs approached them and asked for matches as they were trying their canoe to the river bank. The Arabs fired without warning.

HOME TOWN ASKS EXTRA PROTECTION FROM DILLINGER

MOORESVILLE, Ind. April 24.—(UP)—The town board of trustees Monday night adopted a resolution regarding Mooreville's notorious native son, John Dillinger, and his doings and comings.

Pointing out the citizens of the town are "not equipped with weapons of a nature to cope with a man who carries a machine gun and bullet-proof vest," the resolution declares Governor Paul V. McNutt should, "if necessary," send national guardsmen or a sufficient number of deputies to afford adequate protection to the Mooreville townfolk.

The action was the town's official answer to reports, following the desperado's visit to his father's farm near here April 1 and 2, that residents here were "for" him, and to a petition seeking amnesty for Dillinger.

The resolution set out that Dillinger's "continued being at large is a disgrace and danger to the people of that state."

The Columbia Broadcasting Company's discovery of Nino Martini, tenor, has been hailed as one of radio's outstanding contributions to artistic development in 1933. Martini was first heard as a sustaining feature with Howard Barlow and his orchestra, which brought him the applause of music lovers and the attention of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who soon offered him a contract.

He may be heard tonight, beginning at 8 o'clock, in a half-hour recital of light classical and familiar operatic arias over WGST.

Huey Long Is Grateful For Derivative Applause

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(UP) Senator Huey Long, giving colleagues his view today on the cancellation of air mail contracts, said:

"The democrats were just hungry, they had been away from the trough 12 years."

"I know how they felt because I'm still that way."

As loud handclapping was heard, Senator Simon Pess—presiding—threatened to clear the galleries.

Long asked that he be lenient with the visitors.

"It's the first public approval I've had in a long time," he said dolefully.

On the Air Today

SPALDING—A violin arrangement of Wagner's "Träume" (Dreams) will be featured by Albert Spaulding in his recital over WGST tonight, at 7:30 o'clock, with Conrad Thibault, baritone. Other selections will include Wianawski's "Waltz Caprice," Tchaikowsky's "Melody," and the familiar "Annie Laurie." Thibault will hold the spotlight with "Roses of Picardy" and "Desert Song."

MOVIES—Carole Lombard, popular star of the screen, who has been recently featured in several Paramount productions, will be heard as the guest artist on the weekly broadcast from Hollywood carried over CBS and WGST at 12:15 o'clock.

TUBERCULOSIS—The last address in the educational radio campaign launched each year at this time will be heard over WGST this afternoon, from 2:45 to 3 o'clock when Commissioner of Health John L. Rice will discuss "Gratifying Progress in Tuberculosis Work."

"Dust Between the Stars" will be the topic to be discussed by Professor Joel Stebbins, of the Washington observatory, in the WGST period commencing at 3:30 o'clock.

MARTINI—Two popular classics will be offered by Nino Martini in his broadcast over the Columbia network and WGST from 8 to 9:30 o'clock tonight in addition to arias from Mozart's opera, "Don Giovanni."

Andre Kostelanetz and his orchestra will perform many favorite tunes of yesterday and today.

GRANT STORE STARTS $10,000 ALTERATIONS

W. T. Grant & Company, 86 Whitehall street, started renovations in its quarters Tuesday which will make it, the management said, the model Grant store of the southeast.

The improvements will cost $10,000, and completion of the work, W. G. Sipe, store manager said, will require 10 days. Newest methods of display will be used. Executives of the system will visit the store when the changes are made.

The way tobacco is cut has a lot to do with the way Chesterfield burns and tastes

There are many different ways of cutting tobacco.

A long time ago, it used to be cut on what was known as a Pease Cutter, but this darkened the tobacco, and it was not uniform.

The cutters today are the most improved, modern, up-to-the-minute type. They cut uniformly, and cut in long shreds.

The tobacco in Chesterfield is cut right—you can judge for yourself how Chesterfields burn and how they taste.

Everything that science knows is used to make Chesterfield the cigarette that's milder... the cigarette that tastes better.

Atlanta-Savannah Auto Pioneer To Be Honor Guest in Great 'Cade

The man who 25 years ago made the first automobile trip from Savannah to Atlanta over 300 miles of poor dirt roads, will be an honor guest in the motorcade of the four capitals this spring.

He is James Longstreet Sibley, of Milledgeville, the father of John Sibley, well known Atlanta lawyer.

Twenty-six years ago Mr. Sibley found only dirt roads but this spring he will ride the complete trip on a paved highway from Atlanta to the sea. The motorcade, which is sponsored by The Constitution and the Savannah Morning News, celebrates the completion of the paving on the route which leads through four of Georgia's five capitals.

Leaders all over the state have expressed to Goodloe Yancey, president of the Atlanta Motor Club, their delight in taking part in what is expected to be the greatest motorcade ever to assemble in Georgia.

The tour is the idea of Mayor Thomas Gamble, of Savannah, who has extended an invitation to mayors of all towns 25 miles on either side of the route from Atlanta to Savannah and from Athens to Savannah, to attend a meeting in Savannah May 5 to make final plans for the motorcade.

Hundreds of Atlantans already have signified their intention of taking part in the motorcade at the beginning and other Georgians will join along the route. They will be entertained as the guests of the city of Savannah.

Mr. Sibley will be an honor guest and will occupy one of the leading cars in the procession. The first trip he took required all day in a two-cylinder Cadillac but it can be made with ease in six hours via the paved route now.

WOMAN IS INDICTED IN MEMPHIS SLAYING

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 24.—(AP) Mrs. Maurice C. Maxwell was indicted today on a charge of slaying her husband last Wednesday night as he lay in bed in their apartment.

BAPTISTS AUTHORIZE COLLEGE FUND DRIVES

Georgia Baptist Hospital 'Also Empowered by Board To Seek Gifts.

Schools and colleges under control of the Georgia Baptist convention, and the Georgia Baptist hospital in Atlanta, Tuesday were authorized by the executive committee of the convention, to seek gifts from individuals, supplementing financial support afforded in their regular budgets.

The executive committee, holding its regular spring meeting at the First Baptist church here Tuesday, also authorized appointment of a budget committee for 1935. The budget committee will make its report to the executive committee at a meeting in the fall. Upon adoption by the committee, the budget will be recommended to the Baptist convention in Albany November 13.

Shorter College, one of the institutions under control of the convention, presented a proposal to the committee in behalf of an appeal for additional endowment and for funds with which to enlarge its physical plant. The committee took no action on the proposal Tuesday.

Heads of the various Baptist schools attended the meeting and presented statements with reference to the status and outlook for the institutions. These included Dr. Spright Dowell, president of Mercer University, Macon; Dr. A. Chamble, president of Besse Tilt College, Forsyth; Dr. Paul Conley, Shorter College, Rome; Dr. Paul Carroll, Norman Junior College, Norman Park; Dr. A. M. Gates, of Brewster-Parker Institute, Mount Vernon-Alley.

The committee voted a small appropriation to defray expenses of the convention's social service committee, of which Colonel W. W. Gaines, of Atlanta, is chairman.

The membership of the committee is composed of 53 pastors and laymen from all parts of the state. Most of them were in attendance at the session today. The committee includes the following:

J. Ellis Sammons, Macon; W. H. Faust, Atlanta; B. H. Hardy, Barnesville; J. F. McGinnis, Milledgeville; C. H. Schwall, Augusta; B. D. Ragdale, Macon; H. D. Warnock, Forsyth; Spencer B. King, Blakely; Carlton W. Bins, Atlanta; Mrs. B. L. Buge, Atlanta; E. E. Doble, Valdosta; W. A. Duncan, East Point; Harry V. Smith, Barnesville; Mrs. J. Henry Burnett, Macon; W. H. Knight, Atlanta; J. C. Estes, Macon; George C. Gibson, Titon; W. H. Major, Atlanta; F. S. Porter, Columbus; W. H. Rich, Waycross; J. C. Wilkinson, Athens; W. L. Cutts, Atlanta; Fred E. Smith, Augusta; James B. Turner, Griffin; Ellis A. Fuller, Atlanta; Ryland Knight, Atlanta; W. A. Tallaferrro, Savannah; G. F. Tyner, Augusta, and James W. Merritt, Atlanta.

Boykin's 'Saloon No. 2' Is 'Knocked Off' Again

George Manos, clerk in the Blue Goose cafe, at 115 Walton street, was arrested Tuesday afternoon by Solicitor-General Boykin's "flying squad," which raided the place for the second time in 24 hours. Manos, officers said, resisted arrest and was dragged from behind a counter and held in default of $1,000 bond for violation of the state dry law.

The cafe was listed as "number two" on the solicitor's roster of alleged speakeasies said to be selling liquor by the drink to thirsty persons. The first raid Monday afternoon resulted in the arrest of a man giving the name of Chrest Hills.

Officers said they entered the place again Tuesday just as three customers were tilting their glasses. They were taken to the solicitor's office for questioning but no cases were made against them.

The so-called "number one" spot on the solicitor's list was named as 704 Fonce de Leon avenue, N. E., and in a raid Saturday, Detective Vaughn and Anderson and County Police Cates and Heard seized 50 gallons of liquor buried in a vat and arrested one man.

Rent Still Comes Due, Eager Tenants Learn

Unexpected willingness of certain negro tenants in the Atlanta University housing area to respond to summonses caused surprise in the United States marshal's office here which is charged with serving tenants as well as owners with condemnation proceedings.

The officers had anticipated complications. Instead, they came up to the office voluntarily. It developed that they were under the impression that this formality relieved them of the necessity of paying rent. Their surprise came when they found it did not.

Four Tech High Debaters Going to Savannah Contest

Four Tech High school debaters, who Monday night defeated teams from Boys' High and Commercial High school in a triangular district elimination contest, won the right to represent northern Georgia in the state G. I. A. A. academic meet in Savannah Friday and Saturday.

The Tech High teams are composed of Henry Sutton, Milton Arnold, Tom Johnson and Ovid Thrallkill. Their opponents in the Savannah competition will be representatives of a south Georgia high school who were winners in the sectional finals.

The subject debated in the Atlanta contest was "Resolved, that the United States should adopt essential features of radio control and operation as used in Great Britain." Sutton and Arnold, upholding the affirmative side of the question, defeated Sam Gordon and John McClellan, of Boys' High, and Johnson and Thrallkill, taking the negative side, won over David Macaroff and Joe Lipsius, of Commercial High. Boys' High team, arguing the affirmative, was adjudged victor over another Commercial High team.

Briefs Will Be Filed In Trolley Fare Fight

Both the petitioners and the Georgia Power Company Tuesday asked permission to file briefs in the Buckhead-Oglethorpe street car fare reduction case and it is expected that a decision from the Georgia public service commission on the application for a reduction will not be made for several weeks.

Senator Walter A. Sims, chief representative of the Northside Improvement Association, which is sponsoring the application for a reduced fare for citizens of the Oglethorpe line, and Preston S. Arkwright, president of the power company, said they wanted to read a transcript of the testimony before the commission before submitting briefs and it is not expected that the transcript will be ready before May 15.

The commission completed its investigation of the fare situation at a hearing Tuesday.

Under the rates now prescribed patrons who ride north of Buckhead pay an extra fare of 8 cents. The improvement association contends that people of the Oglethorpe area should be given the same fare privileges as those living in other Atlanta suburbs.

WRITES FOR MISS PUGH WILL BE HELD TODAY

Funeral rites for Miss Frances Josephine Pugh, 25, of 1110 Alta avenue, who died Sunday while visiting in Leesburg, Fla., will be held at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the Church of the Incarnation, the Rev. G. W. Gasque officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery, with Henry G. Poole in charge.

Miss Pugh was employed at the state capital for several years and was away in Florida on leave at the time of her death. Her father, John F. Pugh, of Atlanta, is manager of Western Newspaper Union. She is also survived by a brother, John F. Pugh, and a sister, Mrs. Oscar Rhodes, the latter of Virginia.

BETTER TIMES PARADE POSTPONED TO APRIL 30

Bad Weather Brings Delay in Prosperity March Until Monday.

In order to safeguard the health of hundreds of marchers and costumed participants on floats as well as the infants in the baby division, Milton D. Crandall, director of the Atlanta Better Times parade, Tuesday postponed the festival until Monday evening, April 30.

Owing to the Memorial Day parade Thursday, many firms requested the Monday date.

M. I. Slaughter, chairman of the parade committee said, "The Atlanta Better Times parade, which was scheduled for last night but which was postponed until Monday night because of the uncertainty of the weather, will be all the better for the longer time given to put the finishing touches upon it."

"Much time and energy have been expended to make the demonstration of sympathy with the reviving spirit of the nation. Many floats have been constructed, many bands have been engaged, and hundreds of marchers are preparing to appear in line."

"All this effort would go for naught, if tens of thousands of spectators were not gathered along the line of march, to be inspired by the spectacle with new confidence in the future."

AD MEN TO MEET TODAY AT ANSLEY

The Atlanta Ad Club will hold a joint meeting today with the Chamber of Commerce and other organizations on the roof of the Ansley hotel. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 o'clock.

Sherman Rogers, associate editor of Liberty magazine, who has addressed various civic organizations here, will be the guest-speaker.

One Bandit Wounded and Captured As Two Flee Wrath of Vigilantes

ROUND LAKE, Ill., April 24.—(AP) Three robbers came gunning for bank money today, but they left hurriedly without it—two in a shower of bullets and one in an ambulance.

A quick shooting banker, a swarm of vigilantes and a barrage of lead and garden tools sent them packing.

At 9:30 a. m. leaving one man at the wheel of their black coach, the pair marched up to the cage and asked E. C. Weber, the bank president, for a job.

"This is a stickup," one announced. "The hell it is," retorted Weber, and reached for his shooting iron.

Two bullets came sailing at Weber from the sentry at the door. But the slugs were checked by proof glass surrounding the cage.

Weber reached for the opening and fired back three times. The robbers took to their heels, but the town vigilantes had heard the call to battle and were already swarming around from near-by shops.

A bullet dropped one robber as he raced for cover toward a lumber yard.

The wounded man, taken to a hospital at Waukegan to have his leg injury dressed, gave his name as Archie Rhodes, and said he was "a bum." Officers said he was thoroughly drunk.

HOME AND HOSTESS
SHOW IN 3RD DAY

Fernigan, the personality girl; Dan Hornsby, the radio star; Perry Bechtel, banjo soloist, the Lion Den Boys and Miss Reinhardt.

The rest of the time is given by the visitors to the inspection of the booths where every form of home convenience is displayed. Skilled attendants demonstrate the use of the appliances. Thursday afternoon will be a big day at the show, for during the afternoon the members of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, who are sponsoring the show, will attend in a body.

The federation is composed of 108 clubs with an aggregate membership of 14,000, one of the largest of its kind in the south.

It is selling the tickets to the show, which are only 10 cents each. The proceeds will go to charities to be designated by the federation.

So much interest is shown in the booths that the list of exhibitors is repeated.

Exhibitors at Show.

Top row, RCA Victor, shown by Megahe & Tomlinson; Hotpoint Edison General Electric ranges and heaters. Middle row, Frigidaire, shown by Advanced Refrigeration; and Universal Sales Co., ranges and washing machines. Bottom row, King Hardware Co., Stewart-Warner radios and refrigerators, and the Georgia Power Co. The booths are arranged in a circle around the main auditorium and in two tiers in the center. Each is attractively decorated.

RECORDER J. L. CONE
SAYS DRUNKENNESS
ON INCREASE HERE

Drunkenness has increased in Atlanta during the last year, Judge John L. Cone of the city recorder's court, said Tuesday at a luncheon of the Civitan Club at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

"Police court records show a decided increase in cases of plain drunk, drunk and disorderly and drunk and operating automobiles in 1933 over the figures of 1932," the judge said. "There were about 12,000 cases in 1932 and approximately 15,500 last year."

The judge also urged that greater care be taken by Atlantans in driving automobiles in order to cut down the high death rate. He asked the co-operation of the Civitan Club in the traffic safety campaign. Judge Cone's address was entitled "Do You See Atlanta as I See It?"

ADVERTISING DRIVE
BEING CONSIDERED
BY CITRUS GROUP

ORLANDO, Fla., April 24.—(P)—A preliminary move to popularize Florida's oranges and grapefruit throughout the United States and Canada next season by means of an advertising drive was made here Monday at a meeting of the Florida citrus committee.

Advertising was first brought to the attention of the committee by Frances P. Whitehair, Deland, attorney for the board and a member of the exchange bloc, who said that if committee members had recommendations for amendments to the present citrus marketing agreement that he would be glad to hear about them so he could draft the proposed changes.

A. W. Young, of Vero Beach, demanded that "the committee give a 'full' day" to a discussion of advertising for next season.

Committee members decided that at some future date a session will be given over to considering proposed changes in the agreement, including the matter of an advertising amendment which would give the committee the power to assess fruit to pay for a national and even international advertising campaign.

Committee members said they understood that Texas, Arizona, Puerto Rico and other sections stand ready to join with Florida in a big advertising drive to popularize grapefruit. Details of an orange advertising campaign are being worked out, they said, by those who hope to see a general drive carried on among Americans and Canadians to increase consumption of citrus from all sections.

It will be tough, after all this trouble getting him back, if it turns out here, taking off about 8:30 a. m. tomorrow for New York.

S. CAROLINA GETS $13,100
TRANSIENT GRANT

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(P)—The federal emergency relief administration today granted South Carolina $13,100 to cover obligations incurred for transient relief prior to March 31.

It also was announced that out of a grant of $1,018,438 made to South Carolina for April relief $68,500 is to be used for transient relief.

Ingalls in Virginia.

RICHMOND, Va., April 24.—(P)—Laura Ingalls, who recently returned to the states from a 16,000-mile pleasure flight through Central and South America, arrived here about 4:30 o'clock this afternoon from Miami, Fla., en route to New York. She said she would spend the night here, taking off about 8:30 a. m. tomorrow for New York.

Be Radiant
with the Energy and Glow of Youth

Here is New Strength for the Weak; Rich, Red Blood for the Anemic, and Firm, Solid Flesh for Skinny Folks.

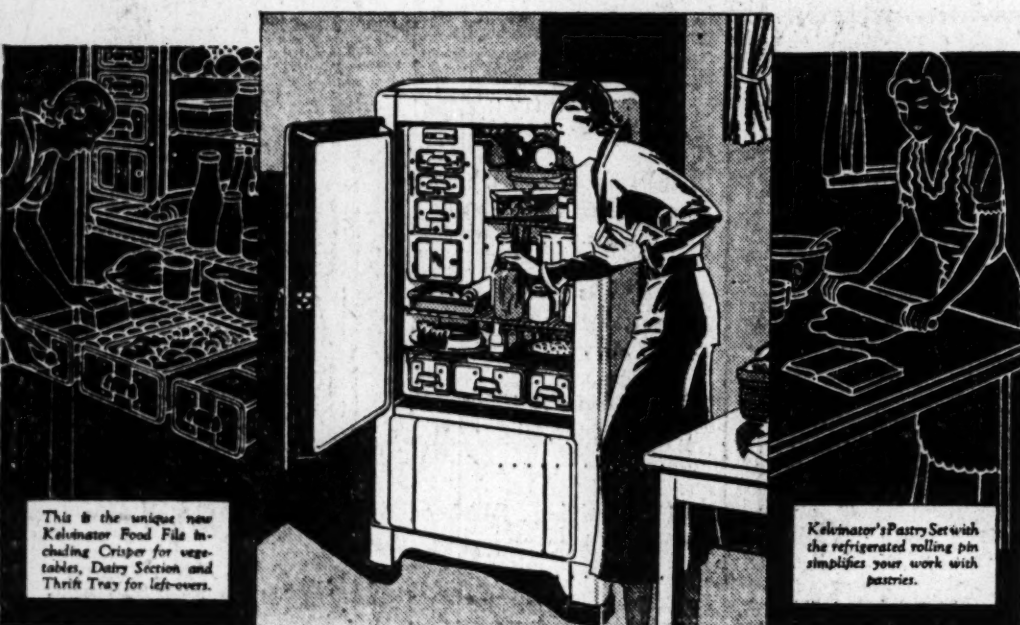

Some people are still young and attractive at forty-five; others appear old and broken before thirty. The difference is in vitality—rich, red blood, nerve force and strength. Every one now knows that rich, red blood gives a youthful glow to the skin and a fascinating vitality to the body that nothing else can.

The quickly enrich your blood, put some healthy flesh in unattractively hollow, increase your nerve force and vitality, and clear your complexion, start on THOR'S VITAMIN COMPOUND of Yeast, Iron and Copper today. Mrs. O. M. Breeding, 4003 Commerce St., Dallas, Texas, says:

"A bad case of stomach trouble got my general health in such terrible condition I seemed to lose all the strength and vitality I had, and my nerves were on edge all the time. My complexion was sallow and ugly, and my face lined with nervousness and worry. THOR'S VITAMIN COMPOUND of yeast, iron and copper routed my troubles in no time, cleared my skin, and got me to feeling like my old-time self. I can never thank it enough."

You take no chance when you take THOR'S VITAMIN COMPOUND of yeast, iron and copper. The 20TH Anniversary
KELVINATOR

THE REFRIGERATOR WITH A PLACE FOR EVERYTHING

If you had designed it yourself you would have done just this—made it as orderly as an indexed cook book—everything in its place and easy to get at. You see there literally isn't a useless inch inside the new Kelvinator. And when it comes to getting something out you don't rummage and juggle—the new food "file" and ample shelves have banished that.

The New Food "File" Idea

Think of the convenience and economy of "filing" your foods under the ideal refrigerating condition for each! That's what Kelvinator gives you—the Food File—the Crisper for vegetables and salad greens, the Dairy Section for butter, eggs and cheese, the Thrift Tray with separate covered containers for left-overs—and the Frost Chest with a below freezing temperature where fish or meat can be kept fresh and wholesome—a place for everything, including the Water Cooler and Pastry Set.

It's Really "4 refrigerators in 1"

This new 20th Anniversary Kelvinator does anticipate every refrigerating need of a modern home—gives you "4 refrigerators in 1," each fully automatic. There is one temperature service for food preservation on your shelves. Another for emergency fast freezing. A third for storing fish, game or meat indefinitely. The fourth for ice cubes and desserts. Isn't that your own idea of complete refrigeration?

New Kelvinator Beauty, Too

You'll show it proudly—this new Kelvinator. For we haven't stopped with the utmost usefulness and convenience. We have given you a Kelvinator that is lovely to see—gleaming, spotlessly white porcelain cabinets that have smartness and modernity in every line. Lustrous, sanitary, chrome-fronted trays that are easily kept clean and bright. Be sure to see the 20th Anniversary Kelvinator before you buy any refrigerator.

SPAIN TAKES IFNI,
STATE BORDERED
BY FRENCH LAND

MADRID, April 24.—(P)—Spain added a brief paragraph to its history recently when the little rectangular stretch of desert, and mountain foothills known as Ifni on the west coast of Africa facing the Canary Islands was attached to the national territory by official occupation after nominal rights had been claimed since 1860.

Ifni extends about 60 miles along the coast and cuts about 15 miles into French Morocco. It is entirely surrounded by French Morocco on the land side and situated some 75 miles north of the Spanish West African possession Rio de Oro. The Moors ceded Ifni to Spain after the triumphs of Spanish arms during the reign of Isabel II. The treaty was signed in 1860.

The French officially recognized Spanish claims to the territory in an accord reached in 1912. Ifni came into the spotlight several months ago when it was reported the region was being used as a base for anti-French Moors who harried the French troops in surrounding territory. The French government requested Spanish authorities to clean up the territory. Occupation was the result.

Hail, Violent Thunderstorms Bring Damage in Atlanta Area

A violent electrical storm, accompanied by heavy rain and hail, swept the metropolitan area at about 2 p.m. Tuesday causing considerable property damage and partly disrupting power, communication and transportation facilities.

Probably the severest disturbance was reported in Sandy Springs, where "the worst hail in history" fell, shattering windows and ripping automobile tops. Accompanying strong winds tore the roofs from several buildings and damaged numerous dwellings.

In Decatur and other suburban districts damage by the hailstorm also was reported, and in some instances was the case in Sandy Springs, the ground was reported to have been completely covered.

Approximately 200 telephones were put out of service in various parts of the city and street car service was hampered. One trolley was disabled on the North Decatur line by sand in a switch, but on no lines did official report abandonment of schedules.

The Georgia Power Company said that lightning and wind disrupted a number of high-voltage transmission lines, but only in a few cases were patrons deprived of electricity. Put out of commission by the storm were a 110,000-volt line between Winder and Porterdale; a 110,000-volt line from Tallahassee and the Boulevard substation; a 110,000-volt line from Loganville to LaGrange; and a 66,000-volt line from Lloyd Shoals to Forsyth. From the Chattahoochee river north to Marietta customers were without power for a while because of a fallen line, but normal service was expected to be soon restored.

Thousands of pedestrians in downtown Atlanta were caught in the torrential rain during the noon-day rush, and all hotel lobbies, theaters, stores and other places of business were crowded to overflowing. Taxicabs were at a premium, and all traffic for a short time was virtually paralyzed.

Firemen reported they answered only one call to fires started by lightning. A bolt struck the house occupied by R. T. Gillespie, 1818 Piedmont road, starting a small blaze which was extinguished before it caused severe damage.

Short-circuited transformers and electrical wires were responsible for all alarms received during the storm, it was said.

Police and hospital authorities reported no injuries traceable to the wind, lightning and rain. Officers, however, said they effectively "rescued" by returning 3-year-old Leo Wright Jr., of Lawrenceville, to his father after he had been found wandering in rain-soaked Whitehall street near Alabama. He had been lost from his father for about two hours while Mrs. Wright was in an upstairs bedroom.

Tuesday's variety of bad weather will be followed today by fair skies and slightly lower temperatures. Forecaster George W. Mindes said. The range is expected to be from 48 to 60 degrees, while Tuesday it will be from 61 to 71 degrees.

Despite local rainfall, the year is still short of rainfall, while the year is off four inches, the forecaster said.

TESTIMONY ENDED IN CANNON TRIAL

Arguments and Judges' Charge All That Remain Before Jury Gets Case.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(AP)—Long days of questions and answers about the use that Bishop James Cannon Jr. made of funds given him to campaign against Alfred E. Smith in 1928 ended today by bringing the conspiracy charges against the bishop and his former secretary to within two steps of the jury.

All that remained was for counsel to summarize the evidence that the churchman and Ada L. Burroughs did or did not conspire to violate the corrupt practices act by not reporting all the contributions and for Justice Peyton Gordon to tell the jury which testimony should be considered legal facts.

In the last hours of the testimony taking today the bishop returned briefly to the stand to tell how records of contributions came to be missing.

He said they disappeared while stored at his office in the board of temperance and social service, presumably because the "satchels" they were in were wanted for something else.

Of the records, he said, a ledger was all he could find after "three days and three nights" of search.

Miss Burroughs had an hour on the stand before her cross-examination was finished.

During that time she denied she knew that Bishop Cannon had gone to New York City during 1928 for political purposes, but said she paid expense accounts for the bishop from the funds of the headquarters committee, anti-Smith democrats.

It was in New York that Cannon first met Edwin C. Jameson, an insurance executive, whose contributions are involved in the charges.

The last witness for the defense was Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, a former United States senator from New Jersey, who gave $20,000 to Cannon's fight against Smith. Frelinghuysen testified that he had given Cannon the money in two contributions of $10,000 each after meeting the bishop through C. Bascom Simpson, republican national committeeman for Virginia.

Frelinghuysen said he contributed only because he had been informed and believed there was a chance to carry Virginia for Herbert Hoover, not, he said, because of "prohibition or religion."

The time set for the roundup of testimony by counsel would fill a whole day, four hours for each, indicating that the case probably would reach the jury Thursday.

Chevrolet Sales Chief Visits Atlanta

L. S. Costley, regional manager, and Charles G. Smith, Atlanta zone manager, were hosts Tuesday to an all-day meeting of Chevrolet zone managers and travelers from Louisville, Ky., Birmingham, Ala., and Jacksonville, Fla., who were here to hear W. E. Holler, general sales manager for Chevrolet, tell of the company's plans for the coming summer months. They are, left to right, front row, Paul Sever, Birmingham, Ala.; W. E. Holler, general sales manager; L. S. Costley, regional manager; C. G. Smith, Atlanta zone manager. Back row, left to right, C. C. Carr, central office, Detroit; N. H. Pearson, Louisville, Ky., and P. A. Watson, Jacksonville, Fla. In an interview Mr. Holler says his company is experiencing the greatest business since 1929, and at the present rate their sales will reach nearly a million cars, or practically a 100 per cent increase over 1933. He said the commercial car division through April 10 was showing an increase of over 200 per cent over the same period of 1933. He stated further that their plans are running full capacity and have built over 300,000 cars since February 1, and are still 70,000 orders behind with their dealers. Mr. Holler is completing a trip over the eastern part of the United States, and will leave Atlanta for Texas, where he will preside over a meeting of southwestern zone managers. He says that everywhere he has been business is gaining so fast that businessmen are predicting this coming fall as the time of a definite return to prosperity.

2 KILLED, 1 INJURED IN AUTO DYNAMITE FIRE

BURKEVILLE, Va., April 24.—(AP)—Two men were killed and a third was in a Richmond hospital today as the result of a dynamite fire in an automobile.

The dead were Johnson Harvey, 25, of Nottoway, and his uncle, M. G. Harvey, Roy Green, of Burkeville, was seriously burned.

The dynamite caught fire in an automobile driven by Green, who was in the car when the explosion occurred. The origin of the fire still was undetermined today.

ATLANTA, GA., APRIL 25, 1934.

TATNALL JURY FOR REPEAL

Significant of the attitude of a steadily increasing per cent of the unbiased, thinking people of Georgia is the action of the grand jury of Tatnall county in favoring in their recommendations to the court the repeal of the state prohibition law.

If prohibition lessened the sale and consumption of liquor there would be no valid reason for suggesting that some other method of increasing temperance be tried, but if ever anything was clearly demonstrated it is that the effort to stop drinking by law has brought about just the opposite result.

In addition, it has created a new and powerful criminal class, who corrupt not only the law enforcement agencies but extend their destructive influences even into the courts.

Not even in the so-called "wide-open" days in Georgia, when hundreds of saloons existed in the cities and every small town had its grog shop, has drinking been as prevalent as it is now. Then liquor sales were limited to stores operated under rigid restrictive laws. Now the kitchens and closets of a distressingly large per cent of our homes have become impromptu bars, from which poisonous concoctions are served to guests on occasions of every sort.

The days of the open bar are gone forever, but there undoubtedly is some better way than by prohibition to stop towards temperance and to fight the activities of the moonshiner and the bootlegger.

It is a problem that must be attacked sanely and calmly, and with the best way to eliminate the evils now existing is to be discovered. The action of the Tatnall grand jury is a real service not only to the people of that county, but to the state as a whole, in pointing out the necessity for action of some sort to remedy conditions that have grown intolerable.

STARS OF OLD IN THE NEWS.

News of the pending divorce between Gloria Swanson and her husband, and of the marriage of Norma Talmadge and George Jessel, brings recollections of the days when these two glamorous stars dominated the silver screen.

A decade, or less, ago announcement of a Swanson or Talmadge picture was followed by the forming of long lines before the box offices of the theaters in which they were to be shown. They dominated the silent screen, and for a longer period, than have probably any of the popular stars who have followed them.

It is not a reflection on their beauty and personal charm, nor their outstanding ability as actresses, to consider the evolution through which motion pictures have gone since the days of their dominance. The silent pictures have gone since they first appeared on the screen, simple stories and none too elaborate "sets" have been followed by extravagant productions costing on the average 10 or 15 times as much to produce as those in which these two former first ladies of the movies appeared.

The motion picture industry has led the pace for the world during the past 20 years, and it is natural that the professional life of most of its "stars" should have been comparatively short. Although they still appear occasionally, their dominance has gone and others have come and gone since the days of Swanson and Talmadge supremacy.

From the way Uncle Sam is spending money evidently he doesn't believe in a hereafter.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Strange Occurrence.

When the first soviet ship with a cargo of wine and other commodities reached New York the other day, a strange scene was witnessed. Local communists had gone to the quay en masse to welcome the boat which flew the red flag with the hammer and sickle. Imagine their surprise when the captain of the Russian steamer told them to begone and be quick about it. This is in keeping with the Russian pledge that the Moscow government will not in the slightest way aid communist propaganda in the United States, one of the stipulations inserted in the recognition act by President Roosevelt.

When Maxim Litvinoff was over here to discuss the question of recognition with the president a similar occurrence took place. Litvinoff refused to receive a delegation of American communists. Instead, he went to the Astor and sat down to a gala dinner with the magnates of Wall Street and business.

It is not surprising that with the courts offering such opportunity to postpone, and in many instances, to escape, punishment that lynching occurs as frequently as it is. A report from Crockett, Texas, tells of the cold-blooded killing of a prisoner in a courtroom by the nephew of the man for whose murder he was being tried, and the release of the slayer under a $10,000 bond.

When the courts themselves view the taking of life in so light a manner, there can be no wonder that the homicide record of the average American city is higher each year than in Great Britain and Canada combined.

Our judges and juries are not to blame. They invariably exert every effort to quickly and justly punish those guilty of committing offenses against the public weal. The trouble lies in the technicalities of the law that make, in most instances, the finding of a sentence of guilty only the start of a long-drawn-out fight by the lawyers of the guilty man to save their client from his just punishment.

Several of the states have within the past few years rewritten their laws governing court procedure, eliminating, to a great extent, the technicalities responsible for the inexcusable delays that mark the course of the average case through the courts. Most of the states, despite the efforts of the national and local bar associations, have failed to effect these imperatively needed reforms.

In that failure lies the responsibility for the prevalence of crime within their borders and the difficulty of extending punishment to law-breakers.

A WARNING-FOR MANKIND.

There is room for thought for those too complacent with life in the statement in a recent bulletin of the Michigan Alkali Company that the crawling beetles of today are no longer able to fly as they did in former ages when they had to get out and hustle for their food because life became too easy for them.

When man came along and began storing food in caves, later in houses and now in great warehouses it was no longer necessary for the beetles to fly long distances in search of food, and soon their wings began to weaken until now they remain entirely indoors.

The history of mankind contains a similar record of physical and mental breakdown when nations, coming into dominance, followed different paths of living and thinking from those which marked their ascent.

From the earliest days peoples have gained in vigor and mentality as they struggled upwards, only to deteriorate under the sapping influence of too much ease and luxury.

So it is with the individual man and woman today. When they forget the necessity for physical and mental exercise, they soon, like the flying beetles of old, begin to lose the powers of action and observation they once had.

If we would maintain our alertness, both of mind and body, we must keep on fighting. If we grow content with conditions as they are, we will soon learn that our satisfaction has robbed us of our power to fly.

If all the worthless securities were stretched end to end they would reach from here to Insull.

Confidence is returning. Housewives are beginning again to boil stove-bought eggs.

A WARNING-FOR MANKIND.

There is room for thought for those too complacent with life in the statement in a recent bulletin of the Michigan Alkali Company that the crawling beetles of today are no longer able to fly as they did in former ages when they had to get out and hustle for their food because life became too easy for them.

When man came along and began storing food in caves, later in houses and now in great warehouses it was no longer necessary for the beetles to fly long distances in search of food, and soon their wings began to weaken until now they remain entirely indoors.

The history of mankind contains a similar record of physical and mental breakdown when nations, coming into dominance, followed different paths of living and thinking from those which marked their ascent.

From the earliest days peoples have gained in vigor and mentality as they struggled upwards, only to deteriorate under the sapping influence of too much ease and luxury.

So it is with the individual man and woman today. When they forget the necessity for physical and mental exercise, they soon, like the flying beetles of old, begin to lose the powers of action and observation they once had.

If we would maintain our alertness, both of mind and body, we must keep on fighting. If we grow content with conditions as they are, we will soon learn that our satisfaction has robbed us of our power to fly.

If all the worthless securities were stretched end to end they would reach from here to Insull.

Confidence is returning. Housewives are beginning again to boil stove-bought eggs.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON.

REVERSE

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The snowball is going uphill. At last the regenerating forces of business are working for their own expansion and improvement.

Factories are rounding out a four-month trend of increased production beyond seasonal expectations. Their gradual pick-up is absorbing employment and pay rolls are being enlarged, thus improving purchasing power and opening the way for more production, more employment, and more wages.

It is the vicious cycle of the last four years in reverse.

ACCELERATOR

How long that process will continue no one knows. But at no time during the last four years have such healthy signs been noticeable for months in succession.

Since January, production has gradually improved eight points beyond the normal seasonal flow. Employment has improved about 7 points, pay rolls 43 and department store sales 9.

It leaves us now with production about 86 per cent of normal, employment 78 per cent, pay rolls 66 per cent and sales 77 per cent.

The way automobiles are being sold and spring clothing is being bought clearly indicates that this increased purchasing power is not being hoarded. The money obviously is going back into trade, which should build new business.

CHART

These conditions are proved conclusively in the following foot-proof business chart. You can figure it out for yourself, noticing particularly the trend of the last four months as related to previous years.

All figures represent percentages of normal, which is the 1923-25 average. Each figure has been adjusted for normal seasonal variations and is a true estimate of America's relative business standing.

Import and export figures for March and April, 1934, are not yet available.

REACTION

A seasonal reaction from our present peak is due within the next 30 days. Steel and automobiles are holding up unexpectedly well, but textiles are showing some signs of slipping.

The automobile output for April probably will be around 400,000 cars, which is 50,000 better than March. No one can say what May will bring because production schedules are being held as near as possible to demand.

The government guessers may be somewhat optimistic, but they believe that the recent wage increases in steel, automobiles, coal, and some other industries helped at least 1,500,000 workers.

That is why department store sales are running 35 per cent to 40 per cent above last year in dollar volume. A 20 per cent price increase accounts for part of the rise.

Things are moving so rapidly that it is impossible to estimate within reason the number of those still unemployed.

PWA

The public works program is getting nowhere fast. The extent of its inability to meet the situation was never more obvious than in March, when $72,000,000 of public works contracts were awarded. That was the month when Mr. Ickes' outfit was supposed to show something, opening the spring expenditure program.

But his figure is three-fourths of what he was able to spend in the frigid month of December. Even the depressed private building industry made a better showing. Its contracts awarded in March amounted to $102,000,000. It is no solace to the PWA that March of the private contracts were financed by the federal government.

DRAG

High prices are retarding the recovery of the building industry. Certain piping used in some buildings is up 20 per cent above last year's figure.

The general level of construction costs is supposed to be within 10 per cent of the 1929 boom level.

The administration crowd has an idea that these prices will level off when its home-building program gets into operation within the next 30 days. They think added volume will permit price reduction, but usually increased demand for goods results in price increases.

Common labor in the building trades received 52.7 cents per hour this March, which is 20 per cent more than the wage in March last year. Skilled labor received $1.07 this March, an increase of 10 per cent.

PRICES

Despite all the price boosts in steel, automobiles, department store merchandise, building materials, etc., the general price level of the country has not changed materially since President Roosevelt devalued the dollar. It fluctuated around 71 per cent of the 1926 level from last September to January.

Under devaluation, it ran up to a high of 73.8, but is now back to 73.3.

That leaves us about 27 per cent away from Mr. Roosevelt's promised land—the 1926 price level.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Muscles Bring N. E. Y. Smaller Profits.

APRIL 24.—I do practice left hooks and that fierce glower known as the fighting face before their mirrors, preparing to follow in the steps of Jack Dempsey, but if they do it is only right to intimate to them that times have changed. Little boys who wish to become major league baseball players might do well to consider the change, too, now that Babe Ruth, who still receives the highest salary in the baseball industry, has been reduced to $35,000 a year.

If I were counselor to a young man who wanted to start putting down words and phrases. True, he might never get past the greeting cards and the pulp and always find himself outside the money. But, as a fighter, he might never go beyond the semi-final, and in baseball, he might fail against curve-ball pitching and always find himself a minor leaguer.

And even if he should become the heavyweight champion of the world or the new Babe Ruth, what?

The present heavyweight champion of the world is bankrupt and the proprietors of the baseball firm have said that no other ball player ever will make as much as Babe Ruth did, although his maximum was only $85,000 a year.

$200,000 Total

In the writing of the book, the young man could at least aspire to $200,000 a year, some years, including his royalties and the money he would be expected to know that even in such times as these there are many writers in practice who out-score the Babe's maximum salary by a margin which would pay the salaries of all the rest of the ball club.

It is in the papers that the serial rights to an unpublished story by Charles Dickens have just been sold for $210,000 at the rate of $15 a word. This is hardly to be regarded as the original value of the story, because the price has been based on the compound interest, so to speak, for more than 60 years. Still, it says further in the papers that Mr. Dickens left an estate of about $400,000, which would suggest that Mr. Dickens was able to take excellent care of himself in the clutches with his publishers, wherein he differed much from Edgar Allan Poe, the favorite hero of the people of the writing business. I think I have read that Mr. Poe sold "The Raven" for $26 and a bottle of whisky, although that may have been Manhattan Island.

Three "Breaks" I have heard tell of Mr. Tennyson, that he made a contract to sell his entire output to one publisher at a flat rate of $5 a word, tight union, and that the publisher supposed him of bad faith when Mr. Tennyson wrote "break, break, break, on thy cold gray rocks, old sea." It was a good thing for the publisher that Mr. Tennyson did not stick him with "Boa-Boa."

Among the current writers there are not many who are likely to equal Mr. Dickens' score, although I have been told that Ben Hecht, who is now a reporter in Chicago, has made $300,000 in the last three years and $200,000 more in the course of the last five.

Roark Braxton is supposed to have received $300,000 from "The Green Pastures," and it is the small talk of the trade that J. P. McAvoy, who also was a reporter in Chicago, has been told that Ben Hecht, who is now a reporter in Chicago, has made $300,000 in the last three years and $200,000 more in the course of the last five.

BRYAN'S SON LISTED AS SILVER HOLDER

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(UP)—The name of the son of William Jennings Bryan, who is listed in the west more than 30 years ago with the cry of 16-to-a silver, appeared today on the list of those holding substantial amounts of the metal.

The item in the report submitted to the senate by Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. reads: "William J. Bryan Jr., Los Angeles, had a long position on March 4."

entrapped are they allowed to cross-examine their own witnesses under Georgia law.

Even during the cross-examination, Prosecutor Stephens was unable to get any of the facts he desired before the jury, the girl replying to all questions that she "did not recall."

The only direct testimony which the state succeeded in getting out of Miss Davis was to the effect that she came to Atlanta with Cooper the early part of January and has been confined in jail as a material witness since the arrest of Cooper a few days after their arrival here.

"I still love Charley and am going to marry him as soon as we are out of this mess," the girl said Tuesday night at Fulton tower.

"I have not seen him since we were arrested, but if he feels the same way he did before this case came up, then we will be married as soon as possible," she asserted. She did not comment on her failure to testify at Tuesday's hearing. Her bond as a witness was increased Tuesday from $500 to $1,000.

The state scored a material point when Carrie Lou Calhoun, a negro maid, testified that she was an eyewitness to the shooting of Mr. Chappell on November 4, 1932, and that she recognized Cooper as the slayer because he had on three previous occasions followed her on her way home from her work and had accosted her, asking if she had any money. The negro girl identified Cooper from the witness stand as the man she saw fire the shot which resulted in Chappell's death nearly a year later. She admitted under cross-examination, however, that the posture of the man who had accosted her, and who later shot Mr. Chappell, was very stooped. Cooper is unusually erect and solidly built.

The slain man's widow, Mrs. J. T. Chappell, was the first witness produced by the state. She testified that Chappell was shot while she sat waiting across the street in an automobile for his return after mailing a letter. She did not identify the assailant.

Medical testimony showed that Chappell died nearly a year after the shooting of intestinal paralysis caused by a severance of the spinal cord by the slayer's bullet.

Chappell told attorneys and officers before his death that he was shot after he had protested against returning to his place of employment, the Stoddard Dry Cleaning plant, to open the safe at the command of the gunman, which circumstances are expected to be related in further evidence.

Cooper's counsel, Len B. Guillebeau and Howell Brooks, said they expected to prove an alibi by testimony of several witnesses who testified that Cooper was in Miami, Fla., at the time of the shooting. Testimony in the case got under way before Judge W. E. Fomeroy in mid-afternoon Tuesday.

Under the court's order, the jury was ordered segregated for the night. Evidence will be resumed this morning and the case will probably get to the jury by late today.

ALICE MOCKS THE MOCK TURTLE

"We've had a lot of arithmetic," said the Mock Turtle, "but we can't figure out how anyone can go to Europe this year."

"Why, that's simple," said Alice, "you just send your baggage down to the pier and go aboard a steamship."

"But, Exchange Rates," shouted the other two in chorus.

Alice looked blank. "So what?" she said. "Just what have exchange rates to do with a round-trip steamship passage from New York?"

Any way you figure it, steamship passage is the biggest item in a European tour. Yet a room with bath, First Class, in the Aquitania now costs 37% less than in 1926, President Roosevelt's "Year of Normalcy" ... and the average minimum First Class rate is down by 20%. Cabin Class rates are as low as $234 Round Trip; Tourist Class $188.

And in Europe, railroad rates are reduced 20% to 50%, and hotel rates by an average of 36%. Exchange rates would have to climb very high indeed to offset these advantages. Ask your local agent or write us for folder proving European travel cheaper in 1934 than in 1926.

Methodists To Act On Economy Issue

JACKSON, Miss., April 24.—(P)—Reorganization of boards and general retrenchment loomed tonight as leading issues facing the 224 general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, which opens here Thursday.

The first recommendation along those lines came today from the general board on Christian education, sitting in pre-conference session, when its legislative committee reported favorably a proposal to reduce the membership of the board from 44 to 31 as an economy move.

From another quarter came a counter proposal, the legislative committee of the general hospital board recommending the conference be memorialized "to preserve the integrity and independence of the board and to protect its successful administration."

Both boards occupy important positions in the administration of the church's activities. Their full reports and recommendations will be submitted to the conference soon after it assembles along with those of a half dozen other general boards.

PINCHOTS ARE FETED AT WHITE HOUSE DINNER

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(P)—President and Mrs. Roosevelt entertained tonight at an informal dinner with Governor and Mrs. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, as the ranking guests.

Other guests included Senator and Mrs. Stawer, of Oregon, and Senator and Mrs. Byrnes, of South Carolina; Senator and Mrs. Thomas, of Utah; Senator and Mrs. Thompson, of Nebraska, and Senator and Mrs. Hatch, of New Mexico.

Representative and Mrs. Milligan, of Missouri; Representative and Mrs. McMillan, of South Carolina; Representative Warren, of North Carolina; and Representative and Mrs. Wolcott, of New Jersey, also were among the guests.

Sales representatives from North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana are attending their spring modernization campaign. Mr. Rose said, "While we know that business is substantially better, we believe it will continue to improve. The construction industry lags, and, in keeping with the plans being formulated by the administration to prime the pump of durable goods industries, we are introducing a campaign to push the modernization of existing buildings."

New Deal Evolution, Not Revolution, Says Roosevelt in Answer to Critics

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(UP)—President Roosevelt today answered Dr. William A. Wirt and other critics of his administration with a declaration that the new deal is a program of "evolution" and not "revolution."

The president did not mention directly Wirt and others who have accused administration officials of plotting revolution, but his references to them were made plain in an extemporaneous address at an exhibition in connection with the federal substance homestead projects. Wirt has denounced these projects as "communistic."

"Where there is talk of revolution in this country," Mr. Roosevelt said, "you tell that person who mentioned revolution that there is one too many letters in that word and it should be 'evolution.'"

Lauding the homestead system as one of the administration's foremost achievements in helping depression-stricken families to gain a fresh start in life, Mr. Roosevelt took occasion also to deny charges that the program contemplated "regimentation" of great numbers of people.

"There is no regimentation," the president said. "We are not going to take people by force from one community and put them in another." In the long run, he said, the substance homesteads will cost the government less than it would cost to keep these families on direct relief. "We will work out a system for those families, brain trust or other-and deduced that Dillinger and two or more of his outlaws had reached Minnesota in the neighborhood of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Another group of the seven Dillinger outlaws fleeing after northern Wisconsin gun battles that cost two lives were believed to have gone in the opposite direction. Watches were kept for them in Indiana, Ohio and Illinois.

More Evidence.

"We've got more evidence to work on than ever before in hunting Dillinger," said Melvin H. Purvis, chief of the United States division of investigation here, "and we'll have him before long. His trail is getting broader every minute."

Included in the 5,000 officers under orders to shoot the notorious fugitive on sight were national guardsmen, sheriffs and their deputies, local authorities, state police and federal agents.

One of the clues that federal men considered of most value was a report that a man-colored (Ford) automobile carrying several men was seen speeding through Muncie, Ind., toward the east. The license numbers of the machine were the same as those for which St. Paul police had broadcast a warning.

A report from Muncie, Ind., caused apprehension at Columbus, Ohio, where three of Dillinger's former pals—Harry Pierpont, Charles Makley and Russell Clark—were confined in the state penitentiary upon conviction of murdering Sheriff Jess Sarber in freeing Dillinger from jail at Lima, Ohio.

Apprehension also arose at Madison, Wis., where three women of the Dillinger mob, captured after Sunday night's battle near Mercer, Wis., were held. At St. Paul, it was feared Dillinger might attempt to free another of his friends, Miss Evelyn Frechette, charged at St. Paul with harboring him weeks ago.

Warns in Aiding.

Warning that anyone aiding Dillinger would be prosecuted fully, Purvis announced the four women would be jailed for as long as possible. He added that anyone giving information of the whereabouts of the outlaw would be protected by the United States government.

The killed of Special Agent W. Carter Baum, of the department of investigation, was named by department of justice officials at Washington as George (Baby Face) Nelson, wanted for robbery and murder. Baum was shot down by Nelson and Eugene Boisseau, a civilian conservation

$225,000 in Bank Loot Is Returned by Thieves

KANSAS CITY, April 24.—(P)—Unseeing hands, dealing through a slightly opened door between two hotel rooms, today had restored approximately $225,000 in stolen stocks and bonds to the Independence (Kan.) State bank.

In a strange transaction, shrouded by secrecy, the securities were delivered to attorneys for the bank by unidentified negotiators here last night.

The stocks and bonds were reported stolen last January 31, when four gunmen entered the bank, slugged a janitor, seized $10,000 in cash and the collateral portfolio and fled with three women and two men as hostages. The hostages were released at the edge of the city.

camp member, was killed accidentally by federal men as the Dillinger gang escaped Sunday night from a trap near Mercer, Wis.

Among the more definite reports of Dillinger gangsters being seen was the one at Muncie, another from Milwaukee that a large dark sedan carrying four men with machine guns had sped through the city, and a third from Ellsworth, Wis., that three men had robbed a gasoline station owner, forced him to drive them for several miles, and then stolen his automobile. Fearful that Dillinger might cross the boundary into Canada, three banks in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., hired armed guards as a precaution against a raid.

ARMORED CARS, PLANES SOUGHT BY CUMMINGS

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(P)—Attorney-General Cummings wants armored cars and more men to wipe out the Dillingers.

"If we had had an armored car up there in Wisconsin," he said today, "our men could have driven right up to the house where Dillinger was. The terrible tragedy then would not have happened."

Cummings spoke at about the same time the house judiciary committee was responding to requests by him and President Roosevelt for quick action on a series of anti-crime measures to smash gangland activities.

The committee approved two of seven bills already passed by the senate—one to make it a federal offense for anyone to cross a state line to avoid prosecution for a felony and the other to extend the federal motor vehicle theft act to cover merchandise, securities and other stolen property moved across state boundaries.

Speaker Rainey and Representative Byrnes, the majority leader, conferred with the president this morning and placed the anti-crime legislation on top of the list to be pushed through before adjournment.

$75,000,000 Provided For Relief Till July

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(P)—President Roosevelt today made available $75,000,000 for relief purposes during the remainder of this fiscal year ending June 30.

The relief money comes out of the $450,000,000 recently allocated to the federal civil works administration by congress. The $75,000,000 will be administered by Harry L. Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator.

the group which supervised the CWA art work in the six southeastern states, was happy over the selection of Mrs. Turner's picture for the White House.

Wilbur R. Kurtz, technical adviser to Mr. Haverly's committee, also was pleased with Mrs. Turner's success. "We knew that when Mrs. Turner's Bulloch Hall painting went to Washington it would rank among the best," Mr. Kurtz said.

INSTALLMENT XVI.

He's been coming them for some time to make me out by what I write. Of course, he would do that.

Mr. Brawne took off his voluminous spectacles, wiped them leisurely and after a moment's waiting for Rance to begin, said, "You asked for an interview, I believe, Mr. Rance?"

"You are not ignorant of the reason, I presume, sir?"

"No, sir. I have had a talk with Barbara. You wish to marry my daughter?"

Rance nodded.

"I suppose there are certain questions you'd like to ask me?"

"That is natural. I have an old-fashioned interest in the future of my daughter."

"As a matter of fact you've had an understanding for some time."

"That's true."

"Rather abrupt, wasn't it?"

"Such things are apt to be."

A bell buzzed at the desk. Miss Potter came in with a memorandum which she offered for his inspection. Rance rose and walked to the window, thoroughly angry.

"Decidedly rude. We'll put a stop to that."

"Excuse me a moment," Brawne spoke to his secretary in an undertone. There was a sound of retreating steps and the click of the door.

"Now, Mr. Rance."

He came back, having mastered his annoyance, and remained standing.

"This seems to be an unfortunately busy moment for you, sir—I suggest we postpone the interview to a more appropriate time and place. I should be very glad if you'd dine with me at my club or my hotel."

"There will be no more interruptions."

"Would you give that order then, sir. I am not consulting you on business, you see—and I think there is no need of making this interview any more difficult than it is bound to be."

Brawne studied him a moment, saw that he was not to be trifled with and barked out, "Sit down." He touched the buzzer. "Miss Potter, don't come in until I ring—for any person."

"Thank you," Rance settled himself in his chair and waited.

"You are assuming, Mr. Rance, that I shall oppose this marriage?"

"Really? Why?"

"Exactly. I think your natural reaction to any one who wished to marry your daughter would be one of distrust."

"Distrust?"

"Exactly. I shall try to appreciate your reasons."

"There are two points of view in the question of marriage, Mr. Brawne began dryly. "There is the point of view of the two directly involved, and I might be called the sentimental attitude. I say sentimental because I don't have to explain this to a student."

of human nature—the emotions rather than the judgments are generally to be in control."

"For the moment, let us pass over that."

Then there is the point of view of the parents, the point of view of experience, of a man like myself, who has been watching for 40 years the tragedies that come from impulsive conclusions. You are seeking the beginning of life, I have been recording how life works out."

Rance inclined his head to concede the point.

"Now, my daughter's point of view is easily understandable. You are, I understand, more or less of a celebrity. You are ingratiating, personally. There is a public aura about you that is attractive to the romantic in her. But, to be quite frank, I am puzzled to understand just what attracts you."

"That is an odd question from her father."

"Precisely, because I know her as a father knows his child."

Rance thought a moment.

"These things are rather chemical, sir," he said slowly. "It is difficult for him to detail his real feelings before the interview. That is not, however, the answer you wish. Let me see if I can make you understand."

"Please."

"Barbara is quite the most interesting personality I have met. She is intensely stimulating and sympathetic. She is a personality, some one, rare in these days, who does not run with the herd. She has an original mind and an unusual way of looking directly into the realities of things. I can't imagine ever being bored for a moment with her as my wife. And when I have said that, I think I have touched fundamentals."

"I have known my daughter 22 years and I must say that I do not recognize the description, Mr. Rance. Isn't this the customary sentimental delirium?"

"Did it ever occur to you," said Brawne, raising his fingers, "that this picture you have of Barbara may be a dramatization on her part? There is a strongly feminine instinct to appear to the man she desires, what he would wish her to be."

"The one does not preclude the other. What you refer to is true of any woman. It is a mental superiority we do not possess."

"And that far from being the modern disenfranchised rebel you believe her to be," continued Mr. Brawne, as though he had not heard Rance's retort, "is in reality a thoroughly traditional type, ingrained in her conservatism, but with a dangerous susceptibility and a transitory leaning toward the romantic."

"How little he knows her. But I can't tell him that," thought Rance. He answered, "Probably a third person would give us an entirely different description of her."

Mr. Brawne frowned. Feeling that he was getting nowhere with these philosophic generalities, he said sharply, "You are in love and therefore obstinate. I have no more to say, I suppose, of her previous engagement."

"Yes, indeed."

"I mention it to show you that my judgment of her as impulsive and romantic has real basis, and that you may understand that in this present case, where in upbringing, tradition, outlook on life, there is such evident divergence, that I have the right to be thoroughly convinced."

"Yes, that's it," thought Rance, standing. "He is not going to oppose me immediately—neither flatfooted. He will appear to be reasonable in order to demand a reasonable postponement. Time to work on her feelings."

"That's why I have requested this interview," he said out loud.

"You are aware that there is a large fortune involved?"

Rance stiffened, and for a moment was on the point of a sharp retort. But the growing conviction that at every point the lawyer had been seeking to provoke him to an angry termination restrained him. He drew from his pocket his last two contracts, glanced into them meditatively and said:

"Times have changed, sir, since writers could be regarded as irresponsible Bohemians. We are now respectable."

LONG AGO IN EUROPE. III—Exploring a Cave. Let us suppose that you and I go adventuring in Europe, looking for remains of the Stone Age.

Reaching France, we meet a scientist, Monsieur Verneau, who knows the cave region of southern France very well.

"I shall be glad to take you with me to visit a cave," he says to us. "I had been planning to make further study of the Grotto des Enfants, and you shall be my comrades in the work."

"Why is it called the Grotto des Enfants?" we ask.

"The name means 'Cave of the Children,' and was given because the remains of two babies were found there."

"Were the babies buried there long ago?"

"Yes, they must have been; for near their remains we have found the skeletons of wild horses, which date back to a bygone age."

We feel rather excited as we enter the cave. Carrying picks and shovels, we climb a slope inside the cave until we reach a height almost 25 feet above the point at which we entered. We look up and see that the ceiling of the cave is about 30 feet overhead.

"Look!" the scientist exclaims suddenly. "Here is the skeleton of a man!"

With the aid of our flashlights, we study the skeleton carefully.

"It looks like a Cro-Magnon man," says the scientist.

"The Cro-Magnon race," he adds, "contained some of the brightest-minded people who lived during the Stone Age. They are famous because of the pictures which they painted on the walls of their caves."

"Cave pictures tell us many things about the Stone Age. One picture is of a woolly rhinoceros. Rhinoceros have been found in caves; but without the help of the old artists, we should have no way to know that some of the big beasts had coats of woolly hair."

"Could we go to a cave where there are pictures?"

"Yes," he replies with a smile. "Tomorrow."

"The 'Surprise Leaflet' will be mailed without charge to readers who send me a stamped, return envelope. This leaflet contains riddles, and tells how to perform magic tricks."

Loves and Letters of Charles Dickens

This is the fourth of a series of articles presenting interesting episodes in the life of Charles Dickens. The writer is an authority on the novelist's career.

By EDWARD F. PAYNE,
President of the Boston Branch of the Dickens Fellowship.

(Copyright, 1934, by The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

When Charles Dickens and his wife left Boston after their visit in the winter of 1842, and went to Montreal, Dickens, always an ardent amateur actor, helped to stage a play put on in Montreal by the officers of the Coldstream Guards. He, of course, starred in the production, but he wrote a friend: "But only think of Kate playing, and playing devilish well, I assure you!" And opposite her name in the program which he enclosed he penned eight exclamations.

Clearly, between Dickens and probably many other of those distinguished friends of his there was a conviction that, while Kate was an amiable little woman, she was in no sense the equal of her famous husband, and that thought, growing deeper every passing year, finally broke the bonds.

But, when the charming young couple were in Boston, there was nothing but joy and gladness in their train; they laughed together over the curtained chamber windows in their hotel, they joked about the wardrobe in the room that looked like a shower bath, they promenaded down Tremont street arm in arm, while the populace stared. The old town took them to its heart of hearts for two whole weeks. Perhaps two of the happiest weeks in Kate's whole life.

Play Proves Knife To Sever Bonds.

One typical event finally parted the bonds between Dickens and his wife. Dickens organized in 1858 a company of his literary and artistic friends to produce Wilkie Collins' play, "The Frozen Deep," for a fund in behalf of the family of Douglas Jerrold, left in want at his death.

In the performances given in the Dickens home, which was turned into a little theater for the purpose, as well as in other places in London, his daughters, Kate and Annie, played parts, but when the company went on tour he engaged two young professional actresses in their places. One of these was Miss Ellen Ternan, in whom he took an especial interest.

When the final performances of "The Frozen Deep" were given, Dickens was disconsolate. It had all been so delightful to him, applause at his acting, the excitement of traveling, the company of gay, light-hearted people, the freedom from domestic troubles, a relief from the hated relatives always present in his home, his house full of growing children who, although he loved them all, forced him, to see that he was no longer young, no longer really eligible to associate with young and pretty actresses, except as an elderly player on the stage.

To his boon companion, Wilkie Collins, he wrote: "The domestic unhappiness remains so strong upon me that I can't write and I can't rest one minute. I have never known a moment's peace or content since the last night of 'The Frozen Deep.'"

This may sound childish, but it was serious to Dickens. There was much more to follow.

Gossip Precipitates "Scene" at Home.

It is believed that his mother-in-law and a sister-in-law, Helen Gorth, both living in his home, either started or repeated some gossip linking his name with Ellen Ternan. There was a scene, and all the "in-laws" left and his wife went with them.

Four weeks later, under the supervision of friends of both parties, a settlement of $3,000 a year was given to Mrs. Dickens, and Charles Dickens Jr., the eldest son, went to live with his mother.

There was no divorce. Mrs. Dickens continued to live in a new-found peace and comfort with her favorite son. She saw the other children as often as she or they desired.

The comment and criticism of the press and public soon subsided, with no apparent evil effects to anyone, ailed, no doubt, by a stern and manly statement by Dickens. When he was in Boston in 1868, it was noted in the diary of one of his close friends there that he took a great and sympathetic interest in the men he met who had domestic troubles.

He seldom spoke of his own, but the question so often asked, as to why he parted from his wife, can be answered in these words:

He was a great genius, an indulgent father and a steadfast friend, but he failed as a husband, and his wife finally left him.

BLACK DENIES PLANES IN LOW BIDS UNSAFE

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(AP)—The charge by Senator Austin, Republican, Vermont, in the senate today that some of the low bids for temporary air mail contracts were made by companies which planned to use unsafe equipment brought an immediate dissent from Senator Black, Democrat, Alabama.

The low bidder on the Washington-Detroit route, Austin said during debate on air mail legislation, is using planes discarded by the former contract holder on the line.

"By taking planes off the junk heap," he said, "lines can naturally underbid."

Black, head of the special senate committee which investigated the air mail, replied by placing figures in the record which he said showed that the air mail, on the basis of the new bids, would be carried far cheaper than the rate under the contracts that were canceled.

"Not only that," he said, "but it will be in safer planes, with more rigid requirements and with greater speed."

The average cost per airplane mile when the contracts were canceled, he said, was 27 cents a mile but that under the bids submitted to the post office department last week the average was only 28 cents.

The postoffice is expected to announce temporary awards on 21 routes this week.

PROFESSOR ATTACKS LEADERSHIP OF TVA

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 24.—(AP)—Declaring that "the south is not inhabited by guinea pigs," Donald Davidson, of Vanderbilt University, said today that the Tennessee valley experiment "is a little exclusive."

Davidson, an English professor, spoke at a round-table discussion of the Tennessee Valley Institute. In another round-table Gordon R. Clapp, assistant director of personnel for the Tennessee Valley Authority, said the authority "has discovered an abundant reservoir of excellent human resources" in the valley region.

The Vanderbilt professor said in a prepared address that the TVA is hiring southern labor to build its dams and using southern lands as its laboratory, but it shows a strange lack of inclination to mix southern brains in the management of its affairs.

"By and large," he continued, "the roll of expert administrators and advisers of the TVA has been filled up from sources outside the south. And seemingly, the policy is being extended even to minor positions. . . . The southerner, I think, may be pardoned some boisterous spirit when he notices that the experiment is a little exclusive."

The speaker said that personnel of the TVA "is a detail, which may mean much or mean little. It may or may not signify, as some people think, that the TVA is virtually a foreign experiment conducted on southern soil. If the policy of exclusion is deliberate, it involves an error in strategy which may have serious results."

Davidson said that the "general idea" that the TVA "is a sort of proving ground for the social experimentation of the planned society on which we are about to enter" provides such strict and abstract terms that the success of the experiment is endangered.

"The south is not inhabited by guinea pigs," he continued; "it is not the colonial dependency of some eastern or northern brain trust. We are naturally pleased to have some parts of our disordered social anatomy rearranged, and we are enormously interested in the operation. But it is quite confusing to be told that the operation is by no means for the benefit of the patient on whom it is performed."

Since the beneficial uses of dinitrophenol was first pointed out in medical literature five months ago, he said, several deaths and numerous cases of poisoning in America and England have been reported.

Those suffering from poison as the result of overdosage develop skin irritations and blisters. If the poisoning is critical, their body temperature rises to a point where the brain is affected.

The drug banishes weight by raising the body's metabolism.

SOLON WARNS HEARST OF CHARGES IN PAPER

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(AP)—Representative Blanton, Democrat, Texas, today continued his dispute with William Randolph Hearst, the publisher, saying on the house floor that "if he ever makes a cowardly, dirty little attack on me again in his papers, I'm going to get up on this floor and give his life's history."

Blanton was irritated by a story in the Washington Herald, a Hearst newspaper, saying that "because the representative from Abilene (Texas) is up for re-election again," he blacked house passage of an old-age pension bill for the District of Columbia.

Here is a marketing scene taken in connection with the cooking school at the home, hostess and electrical show. Miss Parker, assistant to Miss Fern Smider, the director, is shown selecting nationally known groceries for the demonstration she will conduct in the school today.

Fleet's Passage From Pacific To Atlantic Effected Speedily

COLON, C. Z., April 24.—(AP)—The huge task of a rush delivery of America's sea fighting forces from the Pacific to the Atlantic neared completion today.

Although the goal of speeding the 111 craft—battleships, cruisers, destroyers and airplane carrier—through the Panama Canal within 24 hours was not achieved, the movement was marked by clockwork efficiency.

Not a single accident was reported as the unprecedented number of vessels rode through the locks, guarded by soldiers and airplanes, as dispatchers and pilots worked feverishly.

Seven thousand jubilant sailors this afternoon swarmed into the small cities of Cristobal and Colon, on a deferred leave after their ships had anchored at the Atlantic end of the canal.

Shore patrols from the ships augmented the Panamanian police force. Perfect order was reported by officials.

Commercial ships held at either end of the canal by the maneuver were expected to get under way tomorrow. After a long conference, naval officers and Panama Canal authorities decided to move seven ships from the Pacific to the Atlantic immediately after the maneuver is ended.

The British cruiser Exeter will be given preference, to be followed by the New Zealand steamer Tamarora, the Grace liner Santa Lucia; the United Fruit Company San Blas, and the freighter Texas Shipper, the Hoke San Maru, and the Beacon Hill.

As soon as these vessels go through, 15 commercial ships will be started toward the Pacific from Cristobal.

Port authorities expressed hope the situation would return to normalcy Thursday. Locks were to be operated throughout tonight.

Limon bay was active as the warships took their respective moorings at the Atlantic end, some taking aboard oil and supplies.

The same warlike atmosphere as on yesterday cloaked the canal today.

Airplanes zoomed overhead, United States army detachments guarded the locks and a censorship on all dispatches was continued.

LOBBYING DEALT BLOW BY WAR DEPARTMENT

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(AP)—All manufacturers submitting motor car bids to the war department must attach affidavits swearing they have employed no one outside of their organization in dealing with the government.

An order to this effect was issued by Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war, in an effort to end lobbying before the department.

At the same time, the department announced award of a contract for 176 heavy four-wheel drive trucks to the White Motor Company for $375,000.

Bids for more than 3,000 motor cars, submitted by two other manufacturers, have been rejected and the bids will be readjusted.

Rejection of the bids was based on a decision by J. E. McCarl, the controller general, that they were not acceptable because the low bidder in each instance had refused to extend the time limit for purchases under the bids.

Oil Code Revision Approved by Ickes

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(AP)—Secretary Ickes, as petroleum administrator, today approved an oil code revision under which an enlarged planning and co-ordination committee will be enabled to balance production of gasoline with consumptive demand through pro-ration of an allowable total fixed by the oil administration to refineries throughout the country.

For the purpose of administering the new provision, which is a substitute for the refinery section of the code, the administration will divide the country into refinery districts.

CLEVELAND RECOGNIZES UNIONIZED TEACHERS

CLEVELAND, April 24.—(AP)—The American Federation of Teachers, Local No. 279, was a legally accredited organization representing its members before the Cleveland school board today.

Affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, the teachers' union won unanimous recognition from the school board at a quiet meeting last night.

Be sure to see the great new Pontiac before you buy any car . . . ride in it . . . drive it! You will agree, before you have spent a half-hour with the Pontiac Eight, that here is absolutely—

THE WORLD'S GREATEST VALUE—only $715

IT'S AN 8 AND IT'S A BEAUTY

4,000 people voted at the New York Automobile Show. They decided . . . overwhelmingly . . . that Pontiac was the handsomest car in its price class. Private opinion went farther. It proclaimed Pontiac one of the two most beautiful cars in America . . . regardless of price!

RIDE IN IT!

Flash along at 60, at 70—yes, at 85 miles an hour! There's no more commotion than at 45 in old-fashioned cars. No wonder . . . Pontiac's engine is one of the smoothest eight-cylinder power plants built. You thrill to its brilliant performance . . . for riding and driving fatigue is absent . . . only pure enjoyment remains. Pontiac outperforms many cars costing much more!

AND UP

Illustrated, the 4-Door Sedan. List price at Pontiac, Michigan, $805. With bumpers, spare tire, metal tire cover, tire lock and spring covers, the list price is $835.00 additional. List prices of other models at Pontiac, Michigan, $715 and up.

800 MILES . . .
50 MILES AN HOUR . . .
17 MILES PER GALLON

Here's a typical letter from the many sent us by enthusiastic owners of the 1934 Pontiac. Read it!

A. H. MINON
Contractor & Builder
Chicago, Ill.
"On my longest trip, which was a little over eight hundred miles, I averaged seventeen miles per gallon of gasoline at a speed which changed fifty miles per hour. I have to add any, I think this is the high speed at which I sometimes drive. The 1934 Pontiac is even more than claimed by the manufacturer."

Flush the Bowels

If hardened waste matter is clogging the bowels, causing constipation, piles, pains in the lower abdomen, gas, distress after eating, or if poorly functioning bowels is aggravating or causing the spread of neuritis, rheumatism, arthritis, lumbago, blotchy complexion, kidney and bladder troubles or excessive weight—YOU owe it to yourself and those who depend on you to make a simple, easy GUARANTEED test. Just flush the bowels. To do this, go at once to the best drug store you know and get a jar of SLEEPY SALT. These synthetically blended earthy minerals are patterned after the famous Sleepy Water from Hot Springs, Ark. The taste is outstandingly different from ordinary salts—in fact you'll find it like taking the original Sleepy Water. After the very first time Sleepy Salt has had a chance to cleanse the poisons and acids from the system and flush them out along with hardened waste matter, you'll feel much better and look so much younger you'll want almost to dance for joy! You'll work better, better—and you'll find your resistance to colds the greatest in years. Naturally, too, the pains of rheumatism, neuritis, etc., are eased, as congestion at the affected parts is cleared away. Don't expect ordinary laxatives to do a job like this—you've got to flush the bowels, so get Sleepy Salt at once. The 75c size is featured this week on a money back guarantee!

Decatur High School Pupils Enter Constitution Contest

Charles D. McKinney, chairman of the Decatur board of education, told The Constitution Tuesday that he had brought the essay contest, which is open to high school pupils of Georgia, to the attention of the two Decatur high schools, many of whom will enter.

The contest will close next Monday at midnight. For the 15 best essays on southern literature in the world of letters, as many sets of the Library of Southern Literature will be given as prizes.

Essays must not exceed 500 words, must be written on only one side of the paper, and be addressed to the Literary Editor of The Constitution. Commenting on the contest, Mr. McKinney said:

"I was among the first to buy the complete set of the first edition of the Library of Southern Literature, and I have just been informed that a creditable number of our high school boys and girls have entered this southern literature contest."

The Library of Southern Literature was compiled under the supervision of southern educators and men of letters. Edwin Anderson, Alderman, and Charles Alphonso Smith were the editors-in-chief, and Charles William Kent and John Calvin Metcalf were the literary editors.

The library includes the productions of orators and statesmen, including Washington, Lee, Jefferson, Stephens and others; historians and biographers, poets and dramatists, novelists and dialect writers, theologians and philosophers, educators and scientists, writers of travel and descriptions, essayists and journalists, women writers of note—all southern-born.

Each writer is introduced with a biography and a choice of bindings is offered. The books are not only entertaining and instructive, but are also ornamental, worthy of a place in any well-selected library.

A new edition of the Library of Southern Literature has just been published by the Martin & Hoyt Co., publishers of Atlanta.

No conditions are imposed on contestants except that they be high school students. It is not necessary to be a subscriber to The Constitution to enter the contest.

Capable judges will read the essays and select the 15 best. The judgment will be final.

Remember the closing date—midnight of April 30.

Plant Started.

RICHMOND, Va., April 24.—(AP)—Work was started today on the new $5,000,000 unit of the Du Pont Rayon Company's plant at Amthill. The excavating will be completed in late May and construction will start promptly.

Plans for Memorial Day Recall First Celebration 68 Years Ago

Answering an appeal which appeared in the old Atlanta Intelligencer, citizens of Atlanta joined hands and hearts 68 years ago in paying the first organized tribute ever held in the city for the defenders of the Confederacy. The appeal was dated April 25, 1866, and was signed by Mrs. J. H. Morgan, Mrs. Julia Clayton and Miss Sallie Clayton, as a committee for the Atlanta Ladies' Memorial Association.

Today the memorial association again appeals for citizens to lay aside their work Thursday and join in a great parade and reverent ceremonies at the Oakland cemetery.

The line of march will form at Peachtree and West Peachtree and Baker streets at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, moving down Peachtree to Whitehall, thence east on Hunter street to the cemetery.

Arrived there, the parade will disperse and reverent citizens will stand with heads uncovered around the high shaft, for which the cornerstone was laid in 1870 on the same day the body of General Robert E. Lee was placed beneath the college chapel of Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va.

Again, as on that first memorial day 68 years ago, tribute will be paid to living and dead soldiers in song, martial music and eulogies by Atlanta citizens. Once more the Stars and Bars will be unfurled to the breeze and the echo of taps and the rattle of musketry will bid farewell to the dead for another year.

Robert Harrison Jones Jr., will be the orator of the day and Rabbi Harry Epstein will officiate in invocation and benediction.

In the parade will be Governor Eugene Talmadge and his staff, other state, county and city officials, high army officers and military representatives of several schools. Bands will be interspersed between the phalanxes of soldiers, and Major Joseph R. Cooke will head the parade as marshal.

HOW VITAMIN D WAS FIRST KNOWN

In 1922, codliver oil yielded up its secret. In that year, scientific research discovered in the remarkable substance now known as vitamin D.

That this oil possessed some special virtue had long been suspected. For centuries, fishermen, who caught cod, and tanners, who used the oil for tanning leather, had been drinking it in spite of its evil taste and odor, because they believed it had exceptional health-giving properties.

In 1924, physicians began giving it to children to cure that common disease characterized by poor bone development, known as rickets.

But as late as 15 years ago, scientists were denying that there was anything unusual about it. "It is useful in nutrition," they said, "merely because it is easily digested. Any other digestible oil will do as well."

In 1919, however, an English scientist showed that when puppies were fed on a diet consisting chiefly of cereal, a little milk, and a vegetable oil, such as cottonseed oil or olive oil, their bones stayed soft, their legs were bowed, and they had other symptoms resembling those of human rickets.

But if codliver oil were substituted for the other oils, then the results were entirely different. The bones of the puppies that received this oil were strong and normal.

Evidently there was something in codliver oil that helps to build strong bones. What was this "something"? Scientists in laboratories all over the world

NEGRO IS GIVEN LIFE BY FULTON VERDICT

Recommendations of mercy saved John Houston, negro, from the electric chair after he was found guilty of the murder of Paul Stanley, another negro, on February 15 at Union City. Sentence of life imprisonment was passed by Judge James M. Maddox of Rome.

Stanley was shot in the back as the climax of a domestic altercation and his body was dumped in a highway ditch half-mile from the scene, according to testimony.

By a process developed at Columbia University, the vitamin D content of codliver oil is removed and fresh from its fishy taste and odor and then incorporated in milk and bread.

Greed of Munition Manufacturers Is Deplored by Mrs. Poole

By BESSIE S. STAFFORD,
Editor of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

In her talk on "International Relations" on Tuesday at the Biltmore, Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, deplored the greed of munition manufacturers. She pointed out that the entrance of the United States into the World War several years ago, this inroad into the peace of the world, was regarded as a step toward bringing about the mutual benefit and understanding of nations. She considered this entrance into the World War the only plan that can bring about the growth of the movement to settle all questions through arbitration and conference.

Mrs. Poole stated that "the greed of individual munition manufacturers encourages the increase in armament." She quoted Will Rogers as saying "If two nations want to fight, let them fight, but let nothing into the countries, and the fight will be of short duration."

The president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs addressed several hundred women here for the thirty-eighth convention of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Poole is a sane and fair interpreter of international relations. Her formula is "learning before leadership." She tries to see other peoples' problems through their eyes.

She lives at a time that has never known defeat, said the leader of the general federation. "We have never been robbed of our territory nor had our land invaded by a foreign enemy. Because of my regard for the feeling of the south, I will never sing 'Marching Through Georgia'."

Valdosta Extension. The Valdosta Extension Club, of Valdosta, extended the invitation which was accepted, for the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs to hold its thirty-ninth convention in Valdosta in 1935.

Birth-Control Movement. When the General Federation of Women's Clubs holds its council in Hot Springs, Ark., birth control, a subject that has heretofore been taboo in club work, will be discussed at length, according to the statement made yesterday by Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, president of the national-wide organization. She considers birth control one of the questions most talked about today, and Mrs. Poole thinks clubwomen should hear all sides of a question discussed. She is a strong believer in a broad education upon all controversial subjects before definite action is taken. Mrs. Margaret Sanger, chairman of the birth-control movement for general federation, will discuss the question before federation leaders.

"Birth control," said Mrs. Poole, "has been treated in whispers only, and in order that the leaders in the federation may know its merits and shortcomings, the subject will be debated at the council in May." Mrs. Sanger is president of the National Committee on Birth Control, Inc., and should birth control be accepted and put into effect for the program, it will become a recommended subject to state federations.

Mrs. Gholston's Report. In making her presidential report at the Tuesday session, Mrs. J. W. Gholston laid particular stress upon the addition of the division of junior women as a department of the federation. A triumphant milestone in club work was reached in the completion of 25 years of student aid foundation with the result that 526 girls have been helped and $96,000 handled since 1909.

Mrs. Gholston paid tribute to the zeal and untiring labor of federated women of their work for Tallulah Falls Industrial school, owned and operated by state federated women. The twenty-fifth anniversary of Tallulah Falls being the only school in the United States owned and operated by clubwomen.

Mrs. Gholston requested the convention to make permanent provision in the constitution and by-laws for the junior division, which is operating under an emergency resolution adopted by the executive board. Junior activity has been one of the main objectives of her regime, which terminates at the close of the convention.

Scholarships valued at $7,500 in Georgia's best schools were given students during the past year. The study of a booklet on "The Legal Status of Women in Georgia" was recommended. She expressed appreciation to the editor of The Constitution for the official club page which has been published every Sunday in the above mentioned newspaper for more than 30 years.

Club institutes have been held every year during the past decade at the University of Georgia, and Mrs. Gholston's report showed that frequent inquiries from other state federations were received concerning Georgia federation procedure and method of conducting these institutes. The live-at-home brought valuable results to agricultural Georgia, the federation having joined with other organizations to promote this project, in which millions of dollars were kept in the state. Federation activities in connection with celebrating the Georgia bicentennial in 1933 included the publication of a booklet of programs and historical information, sponsorship of historical essay contests, and editorial in the production of the historical pageant given in Savannah.

Health Education. Mrs. Carl W. Illig, chairman of health in general federation, made a plea that clubwomen let the banner of health wave high and constantly. Mrs. Illig's idea is that clubwomen must work more persistently than ever before with national, state and community health officials in promoting a co-ordinated program of health education. It is her belief that it is only through such co-operative efforts may any such work program succeed.

She laid particular stress upon the establishment of state cancer hospitals, and urged clubwomen to promote cancer education, because cancer thrives upon ignorance and must be fought with knowledge. "Cancer education should make a strong appeal to clubwomen because it is an outstanding menace to women in the prime of life," she concluded. Mrs. Illig suggests that every clubwoman inform herself, and her family and friends, concerning cancer control and precautions.

Dr. Wetner's Speech. The speech of Dr. Philip Wetner, chancellor of the University of Georgia, highlighted the afternoon program of education. "Education," said Dr. Wetner, "is usually thought of in terms of subjects, such as botany, history, mathematics, etc. Anyone who has ever studied grammar is familiar with the fact that in every sentence the subject is usually accompanied by an object. The university system has as its prime concern the objectives of education. Subjects in curriculum are ends in themselves, but as Dr. Wetner says, 'They are really the means through which definite objects are accomplished, the chief of which is the welfare of the state.'"

Election of Officers. The election of officers, foundations and endowments, and the educational projects of the federation will engage the attention of clubwomen on Wednesday.

Glenn Memorial Church To Honor Stewards at Emory

An informal party for the new members of Glenn Memorial church will be given by the board of stewards, the Woman's Missionary Society and the Sunday school at 7:30 o'clock, May 4, in the Emory University auditorium.

Members of the church and friends are invited. An efficient committee is making preparations for the party. The committee includes Messrs. J. C. Gunnin, J. L. Gilmore, J. B. Peebles, M. T. Harrison, G. L. Payne, S. C. Guy, Mary Dushka and A. E. Kelly. Mrs. G. L. Payne, Mrs. Lavinia Thomas, Dr. J. S. Guy, Dr. G. C. White, S. J. West, Messdames Martha Bigham, Nat. Long, C. C. Jarrell, H. B. Trimble, P. W. Fattis, Tom Campbell and others. Julian Boehm will perform magic feats.

Bishop and Mrs. Warren Candler are in Jackson, Miss., where Dr. Candler is attending the Methodist general conference. Other members of the delegation from Druid Hills include Dr. Harvey N. Cox, Dr. W. T. Watkins, Dr. and Mrs. C. G. Jarrell, Judge John S. Candler and Mrs. J. M. McCracken.

Mrs. Allen Battle left for Rome after a visit to her sister, Mrs. Marvin Green, on Emory drive. Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Dulaney are spending 10 days in Chicago. E. A. Schiller, of New York, are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Byron Aiken, on Lullwater road. Jack Fowler, of Monroe College, is visiting his aunt, Mrs. Lindsey Thompson, at her home on Lullwater road.

Contest Winners Are Announced

Of interest is the announcement of the winners in the second annual contest of the Atlanta branch of the League of American Pen Women, the awards having been made at the April meeting of the branch held Monday at the Piedmont hotel.

"Spring Prophecy," a poem by Mrs. Lilla Woods Daniels, was given first place in group one; "Gypsy Music," by Mrs. Bonita Crowe, won first place in the musical composition group and her "Modern and Ultra Modern Symphonies and American Symphonies" was awarded first in the feature story class.

Mrs. C. Gailor Turner, president of the branch, presided at the luncheon meeting held in a private dining room of the hotel. Miss Jesse Hopkins presented an interesting and informative talk on the latest new books.

Beverly Breen To Give Birthday Party

Assembling a number of the sub-junior contingent will be the afternoon party to be given on Thursday by little Beverly Breen in celebration of her fourth birthday. The guests will assemble at the home of Beverly's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Breen, on Washington street for the entertainment.

The attractive little hostess will be assisted in receiving by her mother, Mrs. Breen, and by her aunts, Mrs. M. N. Melts and Mrs. E. O. Breen. Games and contests will be featured and the guests will number 50 members of the junior set.

Wednesday with Mrs. John K. Otley, president of the trustee board of Tallulah Falls school; Mrs. Charles J. Haden, chairman of student aid; and Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, chairman of Ella F. White endowment fund making the interesting reports for this department. Under the legislative caption, Judge John D. Humphries speaks on "The Importance of Studying Issues."

Messdames T. O. Tabor Jr. and Stewart Brown, co-chairmen of the junior department, will present the following program: Opening song; Dallas Junior Club; salute to the flag, led by a fifth district junior; American Creed, read by a fourth district junior; junior pledge, Miss Mary Stewart Brown; a meditation, Miss Mary Pearl Collins; words of welcome, Miss Albert Palmer; response, Miss Henrietta Green; piano solo, Miss Helen Howard; greetings, Mrs. S. D. Brown; greetings, Mrs. J. W. Gholston; purpose of conference, Mrs. T. O. Tabor Jr.; "My Visit to Tallulah Falls School," Miss Lonnie Reese Couch; "Why Juniors Are Interested in Student Aid," Mrs. Henry J. Langford; "Our Club Programs," Miss Sydney McWhorter.

Press and publicity department, presiding, Mrs. Harvie Jordan, chairman, division chairmen, The Clubwoman GFWC, Mrs. George Burgess Jr.; the radio, Mrs. Norman Sharp. Department of American home, presiding, Mrs. Francis Vaughan, state chairman, Division chairmen, home economics teaching, Mrs. Joe Myers; mothercraft, Mrs. R. C. Griffith; family finance, Mrs. W. H. Oliver; insurance, Mrs. Frank Dennis; home extension service, Mrs. Mable; safety in home and school, Mrs. John Braselton; announcements; adjournment.

'Lighting the Torch of Liberty' To Be Presented This Evening

Mrs. Albert Hill, first vice president of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, who will present the skit, "Lighting the Torch of Liberty," on Wednesday evening at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium, as her entertainment feature of district presidents' program. Photo by Bascom Biggers.

"Lighting the Torch of Liberty," a skit written by Mrs. H. M. Franklin, of Tennille, will be presented as a feature of district presidents' evening by Mrs. Albert Hill, first vice president, this evening at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium. The story depicts the Goddess of Liberty, the role impersonated by Mrs. John M. Slaton, bowed in sorrow because her light has failed. In despair, she turns to Georgia Federation, the part played by Mrs. J. W. Gholston, of Comer, the president, who comforts and assures Liberty that the brilliant beauty of her handmaidens bring forth their lights to light "The Torch of Liberty." In this manner each department of club work is represented by clubwomen, each with a lighted taper, appearing on the stage.

Mrs. R. M. Girard, of Clayton, is American Citizenship, and offers strength and power; Mrs. A. B. Conner, of Bainbridge, is American Laomoe, who brings the light of beauty and the glow of home fires; Mrs. Ivey Melton, of Dawson, in the role of International Relations, stresses brotherhood and cooperation; Mrs. J. F. MacDougald, of Atlanta, in the role of Legislation, offers the light which springs from the laws of truth and right; Mrs. S. G. Lang, of Sanderville, in the part of Press and Publicity, will offer the gleam and sparkle of the official Club Page in The Constitution.

Public Welfare will be represented by Mrs. R. G. Dickerson, of Homerville, through the light of health, industry and protection for the weak; the Juniors will be represented by Mrs. H. P. De LaPerriere, of Hoschton, who offers the rosy light of youth, gleaming with mirth and innocence, and Education, played by Mrs. W. W. Armistead, of Crawford, brings the light of intellect. The role of Tallulah, the Indian Princess, will be taken by Mrs. Ralph Butler, of Dallas, whose candle will typify the 25 years of service that Tallulah Falls school has rendered underprivileged mountain children. Little Beverly Griffith Dobbs will represent The Spirit of Tallulah, and Liberty's Torch will be lit from the combined gleam of the candles, thereby restoring the brilliance of the torch through the departments of federation work.

The legislative skit, "The New Deal," produced under the state legislative chairmanship of Mrs. Lena Felter Lewis, of Monroe, will have Messdames Wellington Stevenson, L. O. Freeman and Mrs. W. A. Omer in the cast. A passage from President Roosevelt's inaugural address brings the skit to a close, in which he said: "In the field of world affairs, I would dedicate this nation to the policy of the good neighbor. That is American idealism."

MACON, Ga., April 24.—The plans for the wedding of Miss Vivian Hay and Halstead T. Anderson, which will be a brilliant event of May 1, are announced to the interest of friends throughout the south.

The marriage will be solemnized at 9 o'clock in the evening Tuesday, May 1, at the home of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Parks Lee Hay, on Georgia avenue. Dr. Ed F. Cook, pastor of the Mulberry Street Methodist church, will perform the ceremony. Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Hay will entertain with a reception, for which other guests will join the wedding guests.

Miss Hay will be given in marriage by her father and will have as her maid of honor her younger sister, Miss Betty Hay, little Miss Pat Weaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Terrell Weaver, niece of the bride-elect, will be the flower girl. Miss Dorothy Vite, of Manitowish, Wis. who has already arrived to be Miss Hay's guest; Miss Betty Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peyton Jones, and a niece of the bride-elect; Mrs. P. L. Hay Jr., and Mrs. Vernon Skinner will be the bridesmaids.

Mr. Anderson will be attended by his brother-in-law, Henry Savage Jr., of Camden, S. C., as best man, and his groomsmen will be George Herbert Edwards, of Lynchburg, Va.; Malcolm Beatty, of Birmingham, Ala.; Ellis E. Arnall, of Newman, and P. L. Hay Jr., brother of the bride-elect.

The ushers will be Perry Mahone, Crockett Odum, Henry Kendall and Elliott Dunwoody.

Shorter College Club To Elect Officers

Dr. and Mrs. H. T. Quillian, of Shorter College at Rome, will be honor guests at the meeting of the Shorter College Club to be held on May 22 at the home of Mrs. Harry Callaway, at 18 Woodward way. Election of officers will be held at the meeting and a special program has been arranged.

Plans for the meeting were formulated at the meeting of the club held on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Norman Coolidge on Springdale road. Mrs. J. Curtis Dixon, president, presided, and gave her yearly report. Scholarship fund has been provided. Miss Louise Bennett, executive secretary of the college was honor guest.

Atlantans Visit National Capital

Mrs. Lilla Wood Daniels, corresponding secretary of the Atlanta branch of the League of American Pen Women, is in Washington, D. C., where she is attending the convention of the National League of Pen Women as delegate from the local branch. Mrs. Daniels, who is a distinguished writer, has been signally honored at the convention by her appointment to preside over the election of officers of the National League, which takes place at the close of the convention. Mrs. Bonita Crowe, of the Atlanta branch, is also attending the convention.

Cost Accountants' Annual Dance

The Atlanta chapter of National Association of Cost Accountants will have its annual dinner-dance today at East Lake Country Club. C. M. Watt Jr., president of the local chapter, will serve as toastmaster, music being furnished by Wannie Heston and his orchestra. Dinner will be served at 7:30, followed by dancing until midnight.

Riding School Pupils To Meet

Pupils of the Biltmore Riding school are requested to assemble at the ring on the Roxboro road at 12:30 o'clock Saturday, April 28, for the annual riding contest to be held on that day beginning at 1 o'clock. All parents and friends of the children participating in the contest are invited to attend as well as others interested in horseback riding.

Yaarab Social Club

A spaghetti supper-dance was held by Yaarab Social Club at the Shrine Mosque Friday evening. The menu was prepared by Gigalano Tommaso, who is a native of the land of spaghetti, and who for many years has specialized in this particular dish.

Yaarab Social Club announces that during the remainder of the season there will be no more special dinner or supper, but each Friday evening there will be a scrip dance at which refreshments will be served during the dance. Refreshments will be included in the price of $1 per couple. These dances are not confined to Shriner, but the public is invited to attend.

Reservations for tables will not be necessary, except where those desiring certain locations wish to retain them. Such tables will be reserved if requested by calling Barnes E. Sale, at Jackson 1283, not later than noon the day of the dance.

Elizabeth T. Winslow, president of the Every Saturday Club, as co-chairman.

Colorful Program Is Arranged For Colonial Dames at Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ga., April 24.—(AP)—The Colonial Dames of Georgia opened their fortieth annual convention here today with a business session in the morning, a motor trip to Warm Springs in the afternoon and a banquet tonight.

Presiding over the morning session was Mrs. Thomas Pinckney Waring, of Savannah, the president of the Georgia society. She said that the program of the convention was printed on paper presented by Dr. Charles Herty, of Savannah. She added that it was the first paper for letter writing made from Georgia pine.

The address of welcome was delivered by Mrs. Ferris Caldwell, chairman of the Columbus town committee. Reports from the officers and various committees were heard.

A luncheon was given at the Woman's Club and this was followed by the trip to Warm Springs, where the Colonial Dames were guests at a tea.

Mrs. Walter Richards, of Columbus, presided over the banquet that was given tonight at the Columbus Country Club. An address was delivered by Lieutenant Harold A. Meyer, of Fort Benning. "The Heward of Colonial Research" was the subject of his address.

Another important resolution coming before the convention today will be the one instructing the division of correction to prepare study material, covering crime prevention and control measures, leading to the support of their enactment into legislation by the congress of the United States.

A resolution was read petitioning boards of education to make nature study a fundamental elementary requirement of promotion from grade to grade in public schools, to include a course in the use and importance of natural resources in high schools, to require students in state colleges and universities who plan to teach to prepare for teaching nature study and the importance of natural resources, and to establish and maintain a school garden on the grounds of each public school where such installation is found feasible.

A resolution was presented to employ only sober licensed school bus drivers and instruct them not to cross railroad tracks unless it is absolutely necessary, and to ask that school boards construct places for buses to turn around, when possible, to prevent crossing tracks.

State clubwomen heard the resolution read which involved the study of unemployment insurance and old age pensions, in order to be in a position to register their opinion on the legislative proposals.

So little recognition has been taken of the wanton destruction of trees and shrubs in Georgia that Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs may favor a law similar to the one mentioned in the new Georgia code.

The general principle and purpose of the Copeland pure food and drug bill will come before the voting body today in a resolution.

Mrs. Brenner read a resolution proposing that in the future the sale of fireworks be made illegal, and any ordinance forbidding the sale of such be not set aside on holidays or any other time, for commercial or any other purposes. The Augusta Woman's Club, having safety and welfare of children at heart, has opposed the sale of fireworks since its organization in 1913, because of many serious and deplorable accidents of the past Christmas in mind.

State Federation Will Vote Today On Resolutions

Georgia Federation will vote upon the endorsement of the principle of the bill providing for a revision of the civil code of Georgia, to include the rights of women to serve on juries, in the belief that woman's ability and qualifications provide a vital factor in the solution of grave and critical problems confronting the nation. The resolution was read on Tuesday at the thirty-eighth convention held at the Biltmore by Mrs. A. H. Brenner, state chairman of resolutions.

Mrs. Claude D. Swint Is Elected President of West End Garden Club

Mrs. Claude D. Swint was re-elected president of the West End Garden Club at the meeting of the organization held yesterday at the West End Golf Club. Mrs. C. M. Tucker was re-elected treasurer and other officers elected were Mrs. B. A. Eubanks, vice president; Mrs. T. B. Whitley, secretary. The slate was presented by Mrs. Frank Harper, chairman of the nominating committee, with Mrs. J. D. Abernethy and Mrs. W. L. Harden, co-chairmen.

Mrs. Swint has served effectively as president of the club for the past year and under her capable supervision each club member has developed her own garden into a beauty spot and has inspired others to do likewise. Mrs. Swint brings to her role as president marked official ability, gleaned in former official capacities.

Mrs. Meyer Lovelace, organizer and honorary life president of the club, was hostess for the entertainment, assisted by Mrs. Howard Lovelace and Mrs. W. W. Dudley. A round-table talk on horticultural subjects was featured. Reports from the committee chairmen were made. Mrs. Lovelace presided at the luncheon table which was adorned with pastel shaded flowers.

Juliette Low Region, Girl Scouts, To Hold Annual Conference Here

Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, of Washington, D. C., a member of the Girl Scout national board of directors and chairman of the field division, and three members of the national staff will attend the annual conference of the Juliette Low region, which will be held in Atlanta April 30, May 1 and 2. Miss Oleta Scrothy, national director of plays and pageants for the Girl Scouts; Miss Amelia Thomsen, secretary of the national camp advisory staff; and Miss Alice Phillips, member of the field staff, will either speak or preside at various group discussions which have been scheduled for the conference. Miss Rex Mitchell and Miss Katherine Park, representatives of the national organization in the region, which includes North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Alabama, will give training courses the week before the conference at Camp Civitana, Atlanta's own camp.

Members of the regional committee will hold an all-day meeting in the home of Mrs. Lee Ashcraft in Atlanta on Monday, April 30, and local directors will hold a meeting at the Girl Scout headquarters in Rich's, Inc. Miss Harriet Dowd, Girl Scout director for the Palm Beaches, was elected chairman for this meeting at last year's conference. The conference proper opens that evening at the Biltmore hotel.

Mrs. Arthur Harris, of Atlanta, is chairman of the Juliette Low regional committee and Mrs. Curtis Byrum, of Asheville, N. C., is vice chairman. Other members are Mrs. Frank D. Holladay, of Atlanta; Mrs. Lucien H. Boggs, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Mrs. David Coker, of Hartsville, S. C.; Mrs. Alfred Kay, of Palm Beach; Mrs. George Lanier, of West Point, Ga.; Mrs. A. C. Nichols, of Savannah, Ga.; Mrs. H. Plante Osborne, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Mrs. Jefferson Penn, of Kalamazoo, N. C.; and Mrs. Herring Whinnip, of Macon, Ga.

The annual banquet which will be held at the Atlanta Woman's Club on Wednesday evening, May 2, will be the gala event of the conference. Mrs. Albert Adams, Girl Scout commissioner, will preside, and Miss Elizabeth Yates, of Greensboro, N. C., will be the principal speaker. Miss Yates will tell of her trip to "Our Chalei" in Adelboden, Switzerland, the international camp for Girl Scouts and Girl Guides from all parts of the world, which she attended last summer. Other entertainment for the banquet will be presented by the members of the Atlanta Girl Scout Council and Leaders' Association.

of bragging about themselves and their own. They are not concerned as to how the listeners react to their boasting, nor do they care what light they put themselves in.

But other people have nothing else to talk about but their children. Their interests are confined to their families and their homes. They live vicariously through their children. They think that do not revolve about the children and when they meet their friends they are reduced to the necessity of discussing the one topic on which they can make conversation.

In every case selfishness is the real motivating cause of this odious habit of fathers and mothers ramming their children down the throats of friends and acquaintances. Neither the glassy eyes of their listeners, nor the frantic efforts the listeners make to turn the topic of conversation divers the dotting parents from their chief indoor sport. A witty woman who has suffered much at the hands of two friends who are adept in the art of bragging about their progeny, says she has discovered a way to cut short the bragging. She always inquires after the children of these friends, gives them a big boost, comments on their virtues, their popularity, their good looks and their outstanding achievements, then these mothers, satisfied that their children are properly appreciated, are willing to talk about other subjects.

Many people have an exaggerated idea of their own importance and when they bring a child into the world naturally it is the only child they have ever been born. As they are accustomed to talk about themselves, what they are and what they have, so they talk about their child. It is only natural that they should place the same sort of value on themselves. After all they created him and he was created out of fine stuff.

Some people talk about their children because they are bowed down with a sense of their own inferiority. They have no special distinctions. They have accomplished nothing noteworthy. Then one day they share in the mystery of creation and they want the world to know that they have come into their own. The child releases them from their sense of failure and gives them the right to do a little bragging.

There are some people who talk about their children much as a man in love with a woman talks about her. He cannot keep her name out of the conversation for five consecutive minutes. She possesses his thoughts so completely that when he speaks her name trips off his tongue; there is much the same way that a woman in love with her husband loves everybody to death telling what a wonderful man he is, how devoted he is to her. She doesn't even call his name; she refers to him as "he" as though there were no other "he" in the world. These people are love-blinded. They see no flaw in the objects of their affection.

Some parents talk about their children because they have bad taste. They don't recognize the impropriety

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.
Members of the general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Four lines per letter. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: Please discuss this subject in your column as soon as convenient. Recently on a Sunday afternoon four friends dropped in for a long visit. Two were single, the others were a young married couple. They were all very nice. These people were not congenial so I tried to discuss matters that would interest all of them. The young married couple had a son about a year old. They went into minute detail about his daily habits, his diet, his likes and dislikes, his cute sayings. No matter how hard I tried to change the subject they insisted on "junior" having the floor. None of us thought him very clever and we were all bored to death. I was sure that the others were interested in their children. It is a mystery to me!

MRS. A. S.
Answer: One of four or five things betrays parents into the odious habit of ramming their children down the throats of their friends and acquaintances: an overweening egoism; a sense of inferiority; love-blindedness; bad taste; interests so limited that they have nothing else to talk about. But from whatever cause the custom arises friends and acquaintances choke and gag at the effort to swallow the dose that these foolish parents hand out.

Crumbly—Mann.

Of interest is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Crumbly, of McDonough, of the marriage of their daughter, Elizabeth, to Roy G. Mann, of Stockbridge, and Atlanta. The ceremony was quietly solemnized at the home of Rev. J. F. Edens, Saturday, April 14. The couple will reside in Atlanta where the bridegroom holds a position with Anderson-Clayton Company.

Campbell Cotillion.

The members of the Campbell Cotillion Club will entertain at an informal dance on Saturday evening, April 28, at Camp Koweta, near Fairburn. Dancing will begin at 8 o'clock. Subscription price will be $1 per couple.

By ALICE BROOKS.
Scarcely waiting to thank her aunt, Joan was into her hat and coat and away. For a short time the children were content to play close at hand but the "game" on the next street proved too great a lure and soon the children were all out of sight.

Nancy saw them go, but she could understand well enough. And she would not say anything if Joan remembered to come in at 7:00. But 7 o'clock came and went. Nancy was not the kind of person who goes to the door and "hoo-hoo" up and down the street. At a quarter of eight Joan came in. She tried to slip upstairs without anyone seeing her.

Joan Wishes She Were Grown-up So She Could Stay Up Late

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

The long twilights of the spring evenings were a great temptation to all the children. They begged and teased and implored their parents to let them play out of doors after the evening meal.

Aunt Nancy finally gave in. "All right Joan, you may go out and play. But you must promise to stay on this block. I don't want you running all over the neighborhood. AROUND LOCAL CONTRACT TABLES by Whitner Cary

CORAL GABLES, Fla., April 24.—In a few minutes the biggest Florida state bridge tournament in history gets under way in the lounge room of this beautiful hotel.

From tonight until the late hours of Saturday it will be bridge and more bridge with three Florida and four southeastern states down for decision.

All the best talent in Florida is here for the events and the little group of Atlantans will have its hands full in upholding the prestige of the Gate City in the heated battles that lurk around the corner.

The tournament opens tonight with the first session of the Florida state team of four down for decision. The second and final session of this event will be played Wednesday afternoon.

The Atlanta line-up for this event will see the Gate City representatives consolidate with players from other climes. One team finds Mrs. C. E. Williamson and Cary will for another Atlanta, teamed with Mrs. Harold Williamson, of Miami, and Henry Hartman, of Detroit. The other semi-Atlanta team consists of Mrs. Frances Welles and Mrs. Mildred Newberger, of Miami, teamed with John Tyler and Whitner Cary, of Atlanta. Sam Newberger, Walter Hecht and John Hardisty, of Florida, and four southeastern states down for decision.

The southeastern open team of four which will be held Thursday evening and Friday afternoon will see Mrs. Williamson, Hecht, Newberger and May on one team and Hardisty, Tyler, Al Walton and Cary on another.

The southeastern open pair championship, held Friday evening and Saturday afternoon will see the following Atlanta pairs entered. Mrs. Williamson and Newberger, Hecht and May, Walton and Tyler, and Hardisty and Cary. Hecht and May will play together in the Florida men's pair championship held Wednesday evening and Thursday afternoon. Tyler and Cary will for another Atlanta combination in this event.

Culbertson on Contract

By KLY CULBERTSON.
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

A Critic at His Best.

Any bridge glossary worthy of its name must include a full description of the word "kibitzer" in all its etymological and (more important) anthropological connotations. To be truly comprehensive it should go further and should list the various types or grades, "kibitzer" being really a generic term. Apropos of this I offer the following suggestion: Any first-grade kibitzer (one who is correct approximately 50 per cent of the time) should be instantly demoted to second grade the moment he fails to maintain this high average.

If this rule is adopted, I am very much afraid that J. R. Adams, self-styled bridge critic of Sydney, Australia, goes to some length to be scolding and facetious in attributing the poor result on one hand to the unfortunate use of the Culbertson system. This was the hand:

North-South vulnerable.
 ♠ J 8 7
 ♦ A 7 3
 ♣ A 10 9 8 4
 ♠ Q 9 8
 ♥ K 10 6 4 3
 ♦ K 10 9 5
 ♣ A K 6
 ♦ Q J
 ♣ J 7 5 3 2
 The bidding:
 East South West North
 Pass 1♠ Pass 2♠
 2♥ 3♥ Pass 3NT
 Pass 4NT Pass 5NT
 Pass 6♣ Pass Pass

The Culbertson players, using the four-five no-trump convention, bid to the laughable (according to Mr. Adams) contract of six clubs. I quote Mr. Adams' comments verbatim.

"He was defeated one trick. The Victorians bid the same suit to five clubs, which were easily produced."

"Now, I know quite well that match players are always liable to make what appear to be perfectly stupid errors in the stress and strain of match play before the frequent eyes of spectators, and this match was the first interstate match ever held in Australia. One must not, therefore, be too critical, but, after all, the critic must have some fun, and if the players make no mistakes, where is the critic's occupation?"

Now, there is only one flaw in Mr. Adams' masterly analysis, and that is that the laughable contract of six clubs could easily have been fulfilled. East's lead of the spade four rather strongly suggests the probability of a singleton or doubleton spade. Certainly it does not appear likely that on the bidding he would lead from the queen. North, should, therefore, plan the play of the hand in such a manner as to avoid taking the spade finesse. It certainly offers less than an even chance of success. He should play the king of spades and then lead the ace of hearts, followed by the

LAKEWOOD IS READY FOR 'FIESTA OF FUN'

Stakes were driven at Lakewood park Tuesday afternoon by representatives of America's Model Shows and officials of the Southeastern Fair Association. As final preparations got under way for the opening Saturday morning of the Georgia Products Recovery Exposition and the "Fiesta of Fun."

Allotment of exhibit space in the exposition building was completed, and the first signs of the approaching carnival were seen on the midway, where 12 novelty rides and 18 side shows will be added to the regular park attractions.

Virgil Meigs, secretary of the fair association and superintendent of the park, said that all available space on the grounds already has been taken. Ceremonies observing the opening of the first occasion of this kind will be held Saturday by officials of the festival and the exposition. Attorney General M. J. Yeomans, representing Governor Talmadge, and Luke Arnold, representing Governor Key, of Alabama, will be principal speakers at the brief exercises to be held in the exposition building from 1 to 1:30 o'clock.

Workers preparing Lakewood park for the opening Saturday of the Georgia Products Recovery Exposition and the "Fiesta of Fun" took time out Tuesday afternoon to help fight a fire which broke out in the racing stables near the track.

Considerable damage was done to the building, valued at $2,500, before Chief Parker, heading a crew of Atlanta firemen, subdued the blaze with chemicals.

Firemen were handicapped fighting the flames because hose on hand was not of sufficient length to reach from the nearest fire-plug, nearly half a mile from the scene of the fire.

Virgil Meigs, secretary of the fair association in charge of preparation of the park for the festival, said that additional crews will be put to work Wednesday morning clearing away the debris, and that rebuilding of the stables will begin soon.

NEGRO IS SENTENCED IN MANSION ROBBERY

Esmer Durham, 16-year-old negro boy of an Emerald street address, was given a straight sentence of 30 days by Recorder John L. Cone Tuesday after witnesses had testified that the boy had slipped into the kitchen of the governor's mansion during a tea party Monday and walked off with a quantity of food and one of the gubernatorial hats.

Queen of diamonds. Whether West coasters is immaterial; he cannot prevent North from stripping hearts and diamonds from both his own hand and dummy. Now this ace of spades must be played, and after that the ace and another trump. East, throw into the lead with the club king, unfortunately is now helpless; any card he leads finesse. It certainly offers less than an even chance of success. He should play the king of spades and then lead the ace of hearts, followed by the

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

By MIGNON. (Posed by Harriet Hector)

Nice women didn't make up in the old days. That is, the not-too-odd days. If you go back far enough they didn't. But today the women who do not use makeup look a bit sallow and lifeless. Lips do not look well plastered with grease paint. But lips so carefully colored that even the family won't find out you have used anything, unquestionably enhance your good looks. They cover the kind of finishing cream and cover them. If you don't believe it, look at some of the drab, colorless women who are young, but look old because they disdain to use even face powder.

I sometimes think I'd like to take one of these women and show her how to use makeup discreetly. I know the difference in her looks would convince her I am right about this.

If a girl has dark rings under her eyes, and looks tired and worn, she can easily apply a liquid makeup foundation, or a soft paste that will give her a fresh, rosy glow. Then her face will be all of one shade after she applies her powder.

There are on the market a number of products for this purpose and they are worth investigating.

Sometimes the softest, whitest skin will have a tiny liver spot. And the "tan" on the next street proved too great a lure and soon the children were all out of sight.

Nancy saw them go, but she could understand well enough. And she would not say anything if Joan remembered to come in at 7:00. But 7 o'clock came and went. Nancy was not the kind of person who goes to the door and "hoo-hoo" up and down the street. At a quarter of eight Joan came in. She tried to slip upstairs without anyone seeing her.

Makeup is for healthy complexions only, but some heavy skins are sensitive and only bland creams agree with them. I can tell you the name of a face powder and a cold cream that are excellent for this type of skin. Whatever you do, don't push, rub hard and scrub a face that is sensitive and looks red after such treatment. Clean it with cotton dipped in a skin-toning lotion of some sort or wash it gently with a mild soap and lukewarm water before applying makeup cream.

Joan Wishes She Were Grown-up So She Could Stay Up Late

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

The long twilights of the spring evenings were a great temptation to all the children. They begged and teased and implored their parents to let them play out of doors after the evening meal.

Aunt Nancy finally gave in. "All right Joan, you may go out and play. But you must promise to stay on this block. I don't want you running all over the neighborhood. And I don't want you to stay out after 7 o'clock. You have your wrist watch. Let's compare time with the clock. I shall expect you in the house at 7:00."

Hallman-Arnold Wedding Plans

Of interest to friends is the announcement of the plans for the marriage of Miss Evelyn Dorothy Hallman and Luther Francis Arnold.

The ceremony will be solemnized at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, May 19, at the West End Presbyterian church. The Rev. E. L. Flanagan, pastor of the church, will perform the ceremony.

The bride-elect will be given in marriage by her father, John Christopher Hallman. She will have as her maid of honor, her cousin, Miss Norris Bagwell. The bridesmaids will be Mrs. T. W. Bergquist and Miss Catherine Cobb. The little flower girls will be Bessie Evelyn Forster and Jane Middleton. Mr. Arnold will have as his best man, T. W. Bergquist. The ushers will be Harris White and Edwin Eubanks.

Preceding the ceremony a program of nuptial music will be presented by Miss Lilly Allen, organist of the church, and Miss Rosa Arnold, soloist and sister of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson Honor Bridal Couple

Highlighting today's social calendar is the marriage of Miss Josephine Crawford and James Dixon Robinson Jr., which will be brilliantly solemnized at 8:30 o'clock this evening at the Peachtree Christian church to be followed by a reception by the bride-elect's aunt, Mrs. Joseph D. Rhodes, at her father's Ferry road residence.

Miss Crawford and Mr. Robinson were honor guests last evening following their wedding rehearsal at the buffet supper given by Mr. and Mrs. James Dixon Robinson Sr., at their home on Ponce de Leon avenue. The hosts were assisted in entertaining by their son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Allison Thorndike; their daughter, Mrs. Emily Robinson Head, and their son, English Robinson. Roses, call lilies and vari-colored spring flowers featured the decorations throughout the house. The guests were limited to members of the wedding party, out-of-town guests and a small group of close friends of the hosts.

Mu Phi Epsilon Presents Miss Spain.

NEW YORK, April 24.—(AP)—

Heavy selling of silver and fresh weakness of grains contributed to further uncertainty in stock trading circles today and the trend was downward. Many leaders were off fractions to a point net, particularly among industrials. Declines outnumbered advances about 2 to 1.

Silver futures tumbled 1 to 2 points and bar metal was down a cent to 43.34 cents an ounce, the lowest since time when speculators turned to the buying side on reports of dry weather in the northwest. In the bond market, United States government securities strengthened mixed changes.

Stock transactions reached the moderate total of 1,276,200 shares. Speculative sentiment seemed confused, unwilling to venture very far on either side.

Metals, steels and rails drifted off, while oil apparently paled on reports in talk of labor difficulties in their industry.

Liquidation of silver futures was well under way before the treasury's list of holders became known. Speculative commitments were well lightened and the market closed around its losses. Silver stocks softened, their losses being about the largest of the day.

Several steel companies issued their first quarter reports today, but interest, of course, centered in the showing of the industry's leading unit, United States Steel, which reported operations exceeded estimates, being larger by a million dollars than that for the final three months last year, whereas most of the smaller earnings. The total was the best since the second quarter of last year.

SUGAR

NEW YORK, April 24.—Raw sugar was steady today. The advance was 1.32 to 1.35 to the basis of 2.75 with refiners showing a little more interest. Holders, however, were not inclined to sell except at further advances.

Sales were reported of 40,000 bags of Philippine sugar to a refiner at 2.75, while today 8,000 bags of Philippine sugar for first half May arrival at 2.75.

There were further buyers at the 2.75 level for May arrivals, but nothing more available below 2.80.

Futures were steady with price changes confined to a range of 1 to 2 points. Higher sales were 14,700 tons, including 4,000 in exchange.

Market Outlook

NEW YORK, April 24.—(UP)—Steel and silver furnished the chief topics of conversation for stock market traders tonight.

So complicated were the factors that the viewpoint was mixed. Traders sold today, western operators offering considerable stocks, with no apparent reason underlying the selling other than general dissatisfaction with the market. The market closed irregularly lower.

Silver furnished the chief topic during the day's trading. Futures broke at the opening, giving a lower tone to the stock market, cotton and wheat. Bar silver dropped a cent

No one would venture a guess

Whether this selling would continue over into tomorrow.

QUARTER REPORTS.

Manwhile after the close of the market steel companies started reporting for the first quarter. Although losses were shown, observers cleaned satisfaction in the way the losses were pared. There had been predictions the United States Steel Corporation would show at least as much of a loss as in the last quarter of 1933, but the corporation's loss was a million dollars under the 1933 quarter. These various reports

U. S. Steel—Loss of $6,896,965 vs. $7,946,445 in preceding quarter and 16,730,271 in first quarter of 1933. Inland Steel—Loss of $1,245,524 against loss of $2,060,645 in first quarter of 1933.

Republic Steel—Loss of $58,682 against loss of $2,521,968 in first quarter of 1933.

Inland Steel—Profit of $1,104,537 against loss of $1,012,063 in first quarter of 1933.

SHIPMENTS OFF.

The leader, United States Steel, reported shipments of finished products in the first quarter were 18.5 per cent under those of the final quarter of 1933.

At the same time the finance committee reported operations in the as against 38 per cent of capacity since April 1 and indications this latter rate will be continued and which exceeded in the second quarter.

There has been some increased buying in steel issues lately, traders said, but they are not sure of the extent. The consistent losers in today's market, leading steel makers are benefiting from recent rail orders.

There were two different factions claimed to derive satisfaction from these various steel reports tonight.

There were few advocates for anyone but the steel industry. They said the increase in trading on the down-side, according to some views, was none too cheerful, while others said it was a relief. There was a little buying—other than foreign investment demands—coming into the market now.

A., B. & C. Tax Increase Fought by Officials

B. L. Bell, chief accountant for the road, said that the A., B. & C. replacement value was $24,000,000 and that figure was used for a rate-making case. He said that the line sold for $20,000,000 in 1927 but that it had recently depreciated in value since that time.

At the close of the arbitration, Mr. Arnold and Mr. Wilhoit said they could study the case before making a decision.

TARZAN AND THE CITY OF GOLD No. 27

A row of mounted human heads encircled the room to which Tarzan and Phobos were taken. "This is the one who calls himself Tarzan," said Gemon. Tomos interrupted with, "He is the one who came to assassinate the queen. He succeeded in making his way into the very palace grounds before he was discovered."

"He does not greatly resemble an Athenean, our hereditary enemies," commented Erot. "I am not," said Tarzan. "Silence!" commanded Tomos. "Why should I be silent?" demanded Tarzan. "There is none other to speak for me than myself; therefore I shall speak for myself."

Johnny Weissmuller in "Tarzan and His Mate," coming to Loew's Grand Friday

"We have a way of silencing impudent slaves, forever," sneered Erot. Then spoke Gemon, the young warrior, and distinctively the ape-man IS that there was a friend. "It is evident this man IS from a far country," interjected Gemon. "Why should we imprison or punish him?"

"The man is guilty," cried Tomos. "He shall be destroyed as Queen Nemone thinks best." As he ceased speaking, a door at one end of the room opened and a noble replendent in ivory and gold stepped into the chamber. "The queen!" he announced in a loud voice and then stepped aside.
